RED ARTILLERY SHELLS ROSTOV ACROSS RIVER

Clear Out Germans South of Don.

MOSCOW, Feb. 7 (AP).—A special soviet communique announced tonight that the entire southern bank of the Don river had been cleared of German resistance. The war bulletin implied that only the 1,400 foot river stood between victorious Red army banners and Rostov as artillery dueled across the stream in the opening salvoes of a new battle for the city.

[Reuters news agency reported that the Stockholm newspaper Aftontidningen had heard the Moscow radio saying that "Russian troops crossed the Don and violent street fighting is raging inside Rostov."]

The communique as broadcast by Tass, official soviet news agency, said soviet troops had captured Azov, 15 miles southwest of Rostov, "thus liquidating the last center of resistance of the enemy on the left bank of the river Don." Olginskaya, about seven miles southeast of Rostov, also was reported seized.

At the same time the communique announced sweeping penetrations between Belgorod and Kursk in the Ukraine and between Kursk and Orel farther north.

Peril Orel and Kursk.

All of these are major defense centers which the Germans have held since the fall of 1941. Orel and Kursk in particular were threatened by encirclement by Red army spearheads thrusting on both sides of these cities.

Red army troops captured Fatezh, 35 miles northwest of Kursk and cut the high road to Orel. Between Belgorod, a vitally important railway center, and Kursk, they took Gostescheve.

The Russians also were reported pushing in strength westward deep in the Ukraine, and the midnight communique announced the fall of a number of populated places, among them Protopopovka, Petrovskaya and Grushevakha, the latter two only 25 miles east of the Kharkov-Crimean railroad.

Gain in Donetz Area.

In the Donetz area where the Russians were moving on a broad front between Kharkov and Rostov threatening the rear of the Rostov defenses along the Sea of Azov, the Russians announced the capture of Kramatorskaya, on the Rostov-Kharkov railway.

The occupation of this town put the Russians on three sides of Slavyansk and only 50 miles north of the Donetz industrial center of Stalino.

Rostov, an ancient city grown under the soviet régime to a metropolis of half a million, is located on the high right bank of the Don, and the special communique's announcement that the left bank of the Don had been cleared showed the Red armies were now ready to battle again, if necessary, street by street, to throw the Germans out. They did this once before, in the opening stage of their 1941-'42 winter offensive.

Peril to Nazis Grows.

The fall of Azov broadened the soviet hold on the Sea of Azov and deepened the peril of German troops in a narrowing sector to the south in the Caucasus.

Dispatches said the Germans were in a desperate plight in the few remaining places they hold in the west Caucasus. Escape is possible only oversea from Novorossisk or across the Kerch strait and either avenue is hazardous because the Russian navy still controls the waters. Black sea storms also are prevailing at this season.

Krasnodar, the Kuban capital, is almost completely surrounded and the Russians are astride virtually all roads and railways.

Free 1,400 Square Miles in Day.

In capturing Yeisk, on the Sea of Azov, Yashenka, Kopanskaya, Privolnaya, Chepeginskaya and Pereyaslavskaya, the Russians made one of the most sensational sweeps of the campaign. They liberated 1,400 square miles in a day.

[The Berlin radio announced the evacuation of Yeisk and also reported that the "evacuation of the Kuban region between the Rostov and Taman peninsula bridgeheads was carried out without enemy pressure" and that all war material and military installations had been removed or destroyed.]

Guadalcanal's Yanks Flank Japanese Base

LIST OF PRISONERS.

On page 7 appears a partial list of the Chicagoland men included among 1,036 American soldiers held as prisoners of war by the Japanese in the Philippine Islands. The list was released yesterday by the war department.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 [Special].—United States forces have flanked the Japanese stronghold in the Cape Esperance area of Guadalcanal by occupying Titi, five and one-half miles west of the cape, the navy announced today.

Establishment of what was described in a communique as "a strong position" at the northwest coastal point beyond the well-established enemy forces was possibly designed to put the American jungle fighters in a position to smash the Japanese in a pincers movement. A strong enough force at Titi could comprise one jaw of a pincers whose other jaw already has been moving west from Henderson field against Cape Esperance.

Forty Mile Advance.

While the communique gave no details of how the Titi position was established, the occupying troops presumably separated from the main United States forces west of the air field and slashed their way some 40 miles thru jungles and mountains to the south of the Japanese. The direct distance to Titi from Henderson field is about 35 miles.

There was no indication that resistance was encountered. The territory traversed by the occupying troops was believed to have been unoccupied.

"Patrol operations are progressing satisfactorily," the navy said.

Jap Bases Bombed.

The navy announced that United States airmen continued attacks yesterday on Japanese bases in the New Georgia Islands. Small groups of planes bombed enemy positions on Kolombangara Island. Douglas Dauntless dive bombers escorted by Wildcat fighters bombed Munda, site of the Japanese airport on New Georgia.

There was no further word of the major naval and air engagement reported to have been developing for nine days in the Solomons area.

2 NAVY PLANES FORCED DOWN NEAR AIRPORT

Two planes, part of a naval squadron, made forced landings in open fields in the vicinity of Chicago airport yesterday afternoon, it was announced by the navy public relations office. No one was injured, and the planes were undamaged.

One plane landed in a prairie at 50th street and Kilpatrick avenue, but was able to take off almost at once. The other plane, with six men aboard, came down at 69th street and Narragansett avenue, in the Clearing industrial district.

Two squads from the Willow Springs county highway station maintained guard over it until a detail sent from Glenview naval air base took over.

The planes were not from Glenview, but part of a formation from a point to the north and were en route to an undisclosed southern destination.

Churchill Flies Home to Tell of Africa Trip

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

(Picture on page 3.)

LONDON, Feb. 7.—Prime Minister Winston Churchill returned to London today after his 10,000 mile odyssey which had taken him to the Casablanca conference, to Turkey, Cyprus, and Cairo, and to his review of British troops at Tripoli.

Capt. William Van Der Kloot.

He wasted no time on welcoming ceremonies upon his arrival here. After lunching with his family he was reported busy at his desk where he is preparing a full report to parliament on his activities since his departure nearly a month ago.

Flown by Yank Pilot.

The last hop of his homeward journey was made in a Liberator flown by the same American pilot, Capt. William Van Der Kloot [whose mother lives at 345 Prospect avenue, Lake Bluff, Ill.], who took him to Moscow last year and also to Casablanca.

Altho last night he spent some time sitting in the cockpit chatting with the pilot, he retired early. The Liberator was met near the coast of England by an R. A. F. fighting squadron which escorted the plane into the flying field, from which prime minister boarded a special train for London.

Crowd at Station.

Altho his arrival here was a secret a considerable crowd gathered at the station. His wife, his brother, John, and his daughter, Mrs. Edwin Duncan Sandys, were the first to greet the prime minister. On the platform he was greeted by the Turkish ambassador, Huseyin Rauf Orbay, members of the war cabinet and dominion representatives. The crowd gave him a rousing cheer, which he answered by giving the customary "V" sign.

The prime minister conferred with Lt. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gen. Henri Giraud during a visit to allied headquarters in North Africa. He was there 24 hours, staying with Adm. Andrew Browne Cunningham.

BRITISH PUT TONS OF FOOD ON SALE IN NORTH AFRICA

ALLIED HDG., NORTH AFRICA, Feb. 7 (AP).—The British isles have sent 35,000 tons of foodstuffs and clothing to French North Africa for sale to the civilian population, Harold MacMillan, the British resident minister in North Africa, announced today.

Supplying the population's urgent need is a "fifty fifty proposition," he said, adding that shipments from the United States would match those from the British. Tea, coffee and 200,000 jars of pork are among the goods which already have arrived in North Africa.

Reserve Half of Cheddar Cheese for U.S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—Food Administrator Claude R. Wickard today ordered 50 per cent of the nation's cheddar [American] cheese output reserved for the government starting Feb. 15. The cheese thus set aside—two-fifths of the nation's entire output—will be used for lend-lease shipment and to supply military forces.

Aids of Wickard said approximately four-fifths as much cheese as they consumed in 1941 will be available for civilian use during the remainder of this year.

Russia Gets large share.

In 1942 the government took approximately 35 per cent of the cheddar type cheese output. About 80 per cent of the cheese produced in this country is cheddar. Purchases last year totaled 243 million pounds and cost almost 56 million dollars. The bulk of the cheese was sent to Britain and Russia.

The government already has reserved for its uses, according to food distribution officials, 30 per cent of the nation's meat production, 30 per cent of the butter, most all of the canned fish, most all of the output of citrus juices, and the entire pack of most canned fruits and vegetables.

Limit on Canned Goods.

The food distribution administration releases to civilian channels those amounts of canned fish and canned fruits and vegetables that it feels can be spared above lend-lease and military requirements. More than half the canned foods are expected to be required for government use this year.

THIS IS WAR! PAPA TOLD BY LAUNDRY TO KEEP SHIRT ON

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—New Yorkers were told today they "may just as well get used to dirty shirts, 6,000,000 of them a week," or do their own washing.

Bert T. Geltz, president of the Family Laundry Owners' association, made the statement, and said it applied as well to children's rompers, women's house dresses and everything except diapers, which are classed as "essential."

It's all because, he added, most laundries will be out of fuel oil for a month after March 1 as a result of a recent retroactive order reducing their fuel oil rations. Ironing, too, he said, would have to end in the laundries under present plans.

7 of R.A.F. Killed, 29 Hurt When Bus Upsets in Britain

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP).—Seven members of the royal air force were killed and 29 others were injured, nine of them seriously, today when a bus overturned near Pontefract in Yorkshire.

BUYER SWITCH TO STURDIER PRODUCT SEEN

Women Hit Hardest, Say Dealers.

Chicago merchants, in one of the greatest shoe distribution centers in the world, predicted yesterday that rationing of shoes and restriction to three pairs a year for each individual will bring a marked change in customers' buying habits.

Altho some were apprehensive as to the effect of the plan most of them approved the speed with which it was put thru—"if it had to come."

Predict Three Results.

Merchants predicted three results of the program, altho some dealers expressed disagreement:

1. Higher priced, longer wearing shoes will be in greater demand.

2. Unless special shoe stamps are granted liberally, persons with several growing children will suffer. Children wear out shoes and outgrow them rapidly.

3. Women will be harder hit than men and will have to buy sturdier types of walking shoes. Because women and children use more shoes than men, the men probably will have to turn over some of their coupons to women.

One State street merchant declared he thought shoe rationing was "wholly unnecessary." He predicted women would be particularly hard hit, since, he said, they need five or more pairs of shoes a year and their shoes "get shabby in seven or eight weeks of wear." He declared that there are plenty of materials for shoes available.

Praise Quick Action.

"All I have to do is to look at what happened to the gasoline filling stations when gas rationing went into effect," another merchant declared.

"If the government had announced rationing would go into effect in 30 days, as they have done with other products, the shoe stores would have had a bad run," another added.

Representatives of two large mail order houses praised the quick action of the freezing order as a step "avoiding panic in the shoe market," altho one said it was difficult for his concern to follow it on short notice.

Tanning industry officials said need for leather for millions of army shoes and other military requirements can be met with ease. Civilians need not fear that their shoes will suffer in quality because of military requirements, they said.

"Ahead of Government."

"The tanning industry has been and is ahead of any program the government has laid down," one official said.

A local leather broker estimated South American imports to the United States last year totaled 6 million hides, about three fourths the 1941 total. He said that with the slaughter of more domestic cattle the 1943 hide supply is expected to equal or exceed last year's.

Harold W. Volk of Dallas, Tex., president of the National Shoe Retailers association, said in New York that he did not believe rationing would impose severe hardships because a survey showed recently that per capita shoe purchases were only 3.7 pairs per year for the last five years.

8 MILLION DOLLAR PRISON VACANT, IS KEPT HEATED

Beekman, N. Y., Feb. 7 [Special].—Green Haven prison, which was completed in 1941 at a cost of $8,000,000 and was to have been opened last July to receive the overflow of prisoners from Sing Sing, has never been occupied and now is in the hands of a crew of 21 maintenance men, a visit to the institution disclosed today.

The huge penitentiary consists of 14 buildings, all but two of which are surrounded by a 35 foot high wall. Largest of the buildings are two cell blocks with total accommodations for 2,116 prisoners—1,008 in each block.

Walton Marihew, who is in charge of the maintenance crew, said his men were keeping the buildings heated at a temperature of between 50 and 55 degrees.

No official reason has been given for the failure to open the prison but it is understood a decrease in the number of prisoners at Sing Sing and other state prisons made the new buildings unnecessary.

LA GUARDIA TIPS OFF NEW YORK; BUYING RUSH IS ON

New York, Feb. 7 [Special].—A tip from Mayor Fiorello La Guardia in his 1 p. m. weekly radio broadcast that shoes were to be rationed gave New Yorkers an hour and a half advance warning today over the rest of the country on the shoe rationing order and precipitated a frenzied buying rush on the lower east side, where stores remain open Sundays from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Most of the stores sold shoes until their regular closing time, despite the government order that no sales should be made after 3 p. m. Some stayed open into the evening and the Delancey street retail district was described as resembling Fifth avenue the day before Christmas.

Crowds Jam Sidewalks.

Caught unprepared, with no extra help, managers and clerks were swamped. Many stores refused to admit more customers than they could handle, while such crowds gathered outside that plate glass windows were imperiled. Police made no effort to interfere with shoe sales.

La Guardia in his broadcast disclosed that "the OPA will announce the freezing of another commodity, beginning tomorrow morning," and added the broad hint: "Meanwhile, don't do any unnecessary walking."

James F. Byrnes, economic stabilization director, announced shoe rationing from the White House at 2:30 p. m., an hour after La Guardia had signed off, specifying that the order was to take effect at 3 p. m.

Business Booms by 2 P. M.

Business on Delancey street began to pick up about 2 p. m. as news of the mayor's words spread.

"This is colossal," beamed Joseph Garn, a chain shoe store manager. "The best buying rush we ever had. How can I help it if the government says close down? Nobody told me about it. My customers? Sure, but they could be wrong."

Other east side merchants expressed like sentiments.

"Is that so?" exclaimed Ben Levine, a store manager, when informed by a reporter of the government ban on sales. "I guess I'd better close right away." But he didn't.

Shoe Exchange Plan Begins in Glencoe Today

Glencoe's skate exchange, which for two years has solved the problem of children outgrowing their skates, rubbers, and overshoes, this morning will open a shoe department to meet local shoe demands among the suburb's children.

A suggestion that shoe exchanges be organized thruout Chicago and suburbs was made to THE TRIBUNE last night by the head of a State street store.

Aware that Glencoe has conducted a skate exchange, THE TRIBUNE, looking for a pattern of operation, queried Paul Misner, superintendent of Glencoe schools.

Already Has Plan.

"Glencoe already has a plan. It begins operation tomorrow," was Misner's announcement.

Glencoe's exchange, which will now devote itself mainly to shoes, is conducted in the Central Elementary school.

This is how it works:

The exchange is operated under the supervision of eighth grade pupils. A charge of five cents is made for each exchange. Any child wishing to get a larger pair of skates, overshoes, or rubbers merely picks out the proper size, turns in the outgrown pair, and pays the five cent handling charge. A reserve of skates is kept on hand, and many are rented or sold to both children and adults who do not have any to turn in for exchange.

Expanded in September.

The decision to include rubbers and overshoes was made in September, 1942, and by January the exchange had handled 150 pairs of rubbers and 85 pairs of overshoes, Misner said. Since the skate enterprise opened, more than 2,000 pairs of skates have been exchanged.

Misner predicted that the new shoe department will far outrange the business done in skates and rubbers. Children frequently outgrow their shoes while they are still serviceable, and thru the exchange system one pair of shoes might be relayed three or four times, he said.

WPB PUTS BAN ON SALES TODAY THRUOUT U. S.

Restrict Colors to 4; Curb High Heels.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—Immediate nation-wide shoe rationing was ordered today by the war production board. All retail sales were ordered suspended until Tuesday morning to enable sellers to prepare for rationing, which begins that day.

James F. Byrnes.

Initial plans call for a ration of three pairs per year per person. Styles will be standardized, and manufacturers have been requested to develop a "war model," a utility type "of standard quality and pleasing design at a reasonable price."

Under the order only one pair of shoes per person may be purchased between now and June 15. They will be obtained with stamp No. 17 in the sugar ration book.

Byrnes Announces Program.

James F. Byrnes, economic stabilization director, who announced the program from the White House, said rationing was ordered "to make certain that the American people continue to have all the shoes they need "thruout the war."

Byrnes said the action was decided upon Friday after a meeting of the economic stabilization board at which representatives of labor, business, and agriculture approved the step. Announcement was delayed until Sunday afternoon, a time at which most of the nation's stores were closed, to prevent a buying rush, Byrnes said.

All types of shoes and boots made wholly or partly from leather or with rubber soles will be rationed. Only house slippers and infants' soft-soled shoes are excepted.

Byrnes said rationing was made necessary "by the critical shortage of heavy sole leather." He said more than one-third of the total sole leather supply is being used for military and lend-lease purposes.

Recall Shoe Export Report.

Last Nov. 30 the office of war information announced that considerable quantities of shoes would be sent under lend-lease to supply the civilian population in North Africa. On the same date New York retailers and wholesalers complained that quantities of footwear were being purchased by lend-lease agencies for export to Africans who may never have worn shoes before in their lives.

Byrnes estimated civilian shoe production will total 300,000,000 pairs this year, compared with 440,000,000 last year. But rations will exceed production, drawing partly on the huge volume already stocked by the trade.

"For 1943 WPB estimates sole leather and reclaimed rubber will be available for only 335 million pairs of civilian footwear, including slippers and infants' soft-soled shoes, which are not rationed. This compared with about 440 million pairs for 1942."

Byrnes said that an individual's shoe ration stamp may be transferred to other members of his family living in the same household. He said this would permit families to make purchases as needed.

Provide for Repair Needs.

Byrnes said "a liberal allocation of sole leather for repair purposes has been provided" to prolong the life of old shoes.

He added that in "hardship cases" special ration certificates will be available at local rationing boards for "persons not having more than one pair of wearable shoes, for persons with jobs particularly hard on shoes, like mail carriers and policemen; where a change of job requires a new pair of shoes, and for expectant mothers who need maternity shoes."

The announcement stated WPB in a few days will issue an order which will provide among other things:

1. Colors will be reduced from six to four—black, white, town brown, and army russet. Two tone shoes will be prohibited.

2. Heel heights in women's shoes will be limited to 2¾ inches. Leather boots will be limited to 10 inches in height. Leather platforms [defined by OPA as women's shoe construction in which the heels continue into the soles, as in "wedgies"] will be cut down, and it is estimated that reduction in these platforms will save a foot of leather in each of more than 15 million pairs of shoes.

3. No heavy duty leather will be allowed for anything but work shoes.

4. Several kinds of shoes using leather suitable for more essential types of shoes will be discontinued. This will include many sport shoes, men's patent leather shoes, women's evening slippers, men's sandals, and metal spike golf shoes. Byrnes said the ban on such nonessential shoes will eliminate 100,000 man hours of labor a day.

5. Straps, fancy tongues, nonfunctional trimmings, extra stitching, leather bows, etc., will be dropped.

WPB also will issue a regulation designed to force manufacturers to keep making their usual quotas of economical shoes, to prevent the industry from shifting to more expensive models on which profits might be larger. Manufacturers also will be urged to seek a new model using little or no leather which could be sold without rationing.

Prentiss M. Brown, price administrator, who ordered the suspension of shoe sales until Tuesday to prevent a run on shoe stores, warned storekeepers and jobbers to keep careful records of sales. He said no inventory of shoe stocks will be taken now, but one will be required soon.

Explains Dealer Setup.

Brown explained the procedure for dealers by saying that they will be required, beginning Tuesday, to collect from each shoe purchaser stamp 17 or a shoe purchase certificate, which will be issued by local ration boards to persons not having a stamp 17 in their books.

Dealers are to hold all stamps collected, Brown said, pending further instructions. They are to go on purchasing shoes from wholesalers with perfect freedom, he said, merely bearing in mind that they owe the wholesalers one stamp or purchase certificate for every pair of shoes acquired.

Shoes which consumers had ordered before today and which were wrapped, marked or set aside for delivery before today may be delivered without the collection of stamps, it was said, provided delivery is made before Feb. 12.

Aid to Athletic Clubs.

A "group purchase" plan was incorporated in the regulations to provide special shoes for ball clubs, factories, and similar groups. A baseball or football club, for instance, will be able to obtain from its local ration board a special certificate authorizing the purchase of playing shoes without using players' own rations. This will apply to amateur as well as professional clubs, but anyone wanting to buy a pair of baseball shoes himself will have to use a coupon.

Among questions which arose was whether retail stores Monday could permit customers to select shoes and have them "laid away" until Tuesday. Officials said this would be legal so long as the shoes did not actually change hands until Tuesday and ration coupon was surrendered for them at that time.

Brown described the action on shoes as "the ideal rationing plan."

"For the first time in these fast moving days we have been able to get on top of a situation before it got on top of us, and the public will benefit," he said.

"The plan is simple and the ration is more than liberal. For several months, civilian Americans have been buying shoes at a faster rate than manufacturers can make them and at the same time keep our troops and sailors supplied—and they come first.

"By rationing now, instead of waiting until overbuying had reduced civilian shoe stocks to the danger point, we hope to be able to make available to Americans—men, women, and children—a ration of three pairs of shoes per person in 12 and 13 months."

Byrnes Cites Alternative.

Byrnes said there was only one alternative to immediate rationing—to compel manufacturers to produce "shoes that would be so unattractive that people would not buy them unless absolutely needed." He said the shoe rationing program had full approval of the six public members of the economic stabilization board.

"Nothing could be gained by delaying rationing," he said, "but much could be lost. Shipping difficulties limit the quantities of hides that can be imported. Enemy submarines imperil the hides that are shipped.

"Only a small additional increase can be expected in the number of cattle slaughtered. Only limited quantities of reclaimed rubber are available for making rubber soled shoes.

"For the last six months of 1942 about one out of 10 pairs of shoes made in this country were for our fighting men. Each American soldier landing in North Africa carried with him or in his bag three pairs of shoes; replacements are figured at the rate of 17 pairs a month for every 100 men.

"On Jan. 1, 1943, civilian shoe inventories, other than in the hands of consumers, were estimated to be equivalent to five to six months' supply. By rationing now, while stocks are adequate, the OPA is able to offer a generous ration and to employ a simple, flexible scheme which should involve only a minimum of inconvenience."

RATIONING SPREADS AFAR IN 13 MONTHS SINCE FIRST TIRE CURB

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—Step forward in your last pair of unrationed shoes and consider 13 months of rationing in the United States.

Tires came first. A buying wave broke out the day after Pearl Harbor, and the government froze all new tire sales Dec. 11, 1941. Rationing began Jan. 5, 1942. Retread rationing followed Feb. 19.

Automobile rationing came March 2, with sales restricted generally to those requiring cars in their businesses. Sugar rationing began May 5, and gasoline rationing came 10 days later for 9,000,000 motorists of 17 eastern states. It was extended Dec. 1 to the other states.

Bicycle rationing had been started July 9.

Fuel oil was rationed starting Oct. 1 in 30 states, and rationing now is being extended to the Pacific northwest. Then coffee came under the program Nov. 29. Beginning March 1 you'll have to present coupon points from the new ration book No. 2, to buy canned and frozen fruits and vegetables, dried fruits, canned soups, and canned baby foods.

Meat rationing is scheduled about April 1. Butter, edible oils, and evaporated milk are expected to require coupons later.

Stormy Seas Kill 5 on Raft After Ship Sinks

A SCOTTISH PORT, Feb. 7 (AP).—Exposure while drifting on a raft in a fierce Atlantic storm killed five American merchant seamen who were forced to abandon their vessel after she was torpedoed and caught fire, it was disclosed with arrival here of survivors. "We were lucky even to escape on rafts," said the second engineer, who with his companions spent seven hours adrift before being rescued. "The torpedo shattered the nearest lifeboat, and we were almost drowned. When we were picked up our clothes were coated with ice and we were all almost dead."

SHOES RATIONED ON MAXWELL ST.—WITH POLICE AID

Customers Fight to Buy Thru Afternoon.

Maxwell street did a very fine business yesterday—in shoes. The famous market, an old world bazar in the heart of Chicago, does business anytime and anyhow it can. Yesterday, when Washington clamped down on all footwear sales, preparatory to rationing, the time was ripe.

Buyers, apparently warned by the radio announcement of shoe rationing, jammed every shoe store in the four and one-half block district which centers in Halsted street. Persons carrying five, six, and seven shoe boxes shouldered their way thru the crowds.

Others, inside, thrust wads of currency into the faces of frantic clerks, clutching their hand picked selections tightly, without benefit of the usual try-on.

Police Action Ordered.

Somebody "hollered copper." Over the police teletype went an order under the signature of Commissioner James P. Allman instructing district officers to halt shoe sales from 2 p. m. Sunday to 12:01 p. m. Tuesday when ration stamp 17 will become valid for a pair of shoes. Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown set the deadline in Washington.

Allman refused to disclose who requested the police aid, but it was assumed the order originated with the office of price administration. About 6:30 p. m. the police swung into action. They visited 10 shoe stores in quick succession and ordered them to close "right now."

"We'll close right now, officer—right now, as soon as we take care of the customers in the shop," replied one merchant. Women pushed by the police in the doorway, clutching their purchases. The proprietor cried out in anguish. They hadn't paid. Others were inside, pulling boxes from shelves and waving cash.

Stage "Sitdown" Strikes.

Police finally herded the patrons out of the store. Similar scenes followed in other establishments. In two more, it was reported, business continued until 7 p. m. until police finally closed the stores.

Brief "sitdown" strikes by women who angrily refused to put on their old shoes until they had been fitted with a new pair also were broken up by police.

"Want to buy a pair of shoes for $10?" one sidewalk peddler hawked in the wake of the police who had just cleared out the store in front of which he was standing. He had three shoe boxes under his arm.

As the lights dimmed in the district's shoe stores polyglot philosophers on the sidewalks agreed in their conclusion. Maxwell street had welcomed shoe rationing brilliantly.

2 DETROIT SHOE STORES SHUT BY POLICE AND OPA

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 7 (AP).—Office of price administration officials and police raided and closed two Detroit shoe stores tonight where tipped off customers were carrying out armloads of new shoes.

Sam B. Ostrow, senior enforcement attorney for the OPA, and Henry Bockoff, OPA investigator, ordered police to open the stores after they said the owners had refused them admittance. The owner of one store declared:

"We are doing nothing wrong. We didn't hear the order because we were working in the store all day."

Proprietor Is Booked.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 7 (AP).—Two small shoe stores were closed here tonight by police and one proprietor was booked for violation of a Sunday closing ordinance. At one store, police reported, a line of prospective customers had formed at a side entrance.

Rush at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 7 (AP).—Policemen failed to stem the rush of customers at one shoe store today, and others remained open for hours accommodating customers who crowded in to beat the shoe rationing freeze order.

OFFICIALS MEET TODAY TO PLAN RATION PROGRAM

Michael F. Mulcahy, area rationing administrator, said yesterday he will confer with board of education members today on final plans for registration for war ration book 2. Registration is scheduled for Feb. 23 to 28 in the 333 Chicago elementary schools. School children will have a week's holiday, but 9,000 teachers will register the 3½ million Chicagoans expected to apply.

Mulcahy warned housewives to try to stretch their coffee ration, since the pound purchased with No. 25 stamp, which becomes valid today, must last until March 21, a period of 42 days compared with the 34 days allotted on the previous stamp. He suggested a coffee-less day each week.

Holders of gasoline B and C supplemental ration books must apply for renewals beginning tomorrow, Mulcahy said, for the new books effective March 1 for the next three months. Renewal forms are in the hands of local rationing boards and the plant transportation committees in 700 Chicago war plants.

R. A. F. ATTACKS RHINELAND AND MINES NAZI SEAS

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP). — Scattered targets in the Rhineland were attacked last night by R. A. F. planes whose main mission was reconnaissance, while big bombers mined German controled waters—probably the Skagerrak, Baltic and French channel coast.

In daylight forays today over northern France and Belgium, fighter planes damaged a number of locomotives and barges, the air ministry announced. Four planes were lost in all operations, including one fighter in today's sweeps.

The Germans sent four Focke-Wulf 190 bombers over a town in southeast England today, killing several persons, trapping others and damaging a number of buildings in the shopping district.

Challenging axis claims of allied aircraft losses in January, the British announced they had lost a total of 122 home based aircraft, compared to Nazi contentions that 238 were destroyed in the west and over Germany.

DIES AFTER FALL.

Anthony Lecknoskas, 56 years old, 3364 South Halsted street, a laborer, died in his home last night after a fall down a flight of steps at 655 Washtenaw avenue.

Two Women Are Injured When Street Cars Collide

Two colored women, Mrs. Nellie Bibbie, 30, of 2921 Indiana avenue, and Miss Rose Syous, 44, of 6155 South Eberhart avenue, were injured last night when a Cottage Grove avenue street car on which they were riding ran into an open switch at 51st street and collided with a southbound car. They were taken to the Chicago hospital.

60 JAPS KILLED IN SKIRMISHES ON FRONT IN GUINEA

ALLIED HDQ. IN AUSTRALIA, Feb. 8 [Monday]—(AP).—Sixty Japanese were killed yesterday in skirmishes in New Guinea, the allied command announced today. Activity in the Wau-Mubo area was limited to intermittent skirmishes between patrols. In that area 39 Japanese dead were counted, while in the Bakumbari district 21 enemy stragglers were killed.

Allied heavy bombers swept over Dutch New Guinea and bombed and strafed the enemy occupied towns of Kaukenau and Timika, while medium bomber units strafed and damaged two Jap luggers near Boeton and the Wangi Wangi Islands in the Celebes. Another bomber unit came upon two troop filled enemy barges in Riebeck bay, New Britain. They swooped down and machine gunned the craft. Heavy bombers also blasted the airedromes, at Lae and at Cape Gloucester, New Britain.

Indiana Gunner Downs Zero.

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, Feb. 6 [Delayed]—(AP).—One of the largest raids in the northwestern area was staged today by a group of Liberators against Jap-occupied Ambon Island. Jap shipping in the harbor was the target. Ambon, west of New Guinea, was approached at medium altitude, with clouds providing cover. The mission was credited with a 10,000 ton merchant ship set afire and five Zeroes shot down. The first Zero dropped from the clouds as the bombers were reforming for the return flight. Sergt. Kenneth Strait, Dunkirk, Ind., the nose-gunner, opened fire when the Zero was 300 yards away and seemed to be flying headon toward the Liberator. His machine gun bullets sent the Zero into a spin.

Participating in the mission was Lt. Donal Sanxter, Angola, Ind.

NODERER TELLS HOW U.S. GENERAL BRAVED BULLETS

Yanks Drove Wedge to Sea at Buna in 35 Min.

An eye witness account of the successful American assault which resulted in the driving of a wedge to the sea between Japanese forces in Buna village and Buna mission on Dec. 5 was broadcast over W-G-N last night by E. R. Noderer, CHICAGO TRIBUNE war correspondent who has just returned from the southwest Pacific.

In the third of a series of exclusive radio interviews describing the war situation in the area commanded by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the veteran writer told how he visited the front lines in the company of an American general while bullets whistled around them and Japanese shells exploded close enough to shower them with dirt.

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger of the United States army has a cup of tea during a pause on trip to Buna-Gona front in New Guinea.

Reach Front in Jeep.

The general was Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, who commanded the troops which wrested Buna and Gona from the Japanese in the New Guinea operations recently concluded. Noderer said that he and Tillman Durdin of the New York Times were invited to accompany the general when he launched his first attack on Buna village.

"The general had asked us to go along and see the fireworks, and he didn't mean maybe," the correspondent said. "The day began with a jeep ride to within about two miles of the front.

"Then we pushed forward thru swamps, slipping and sliding thru gooey, ankle deep mud. After about a mile and a half of that we reached the advance command post situated under immense trees, 6 feet in diameter. Field telephones hung from the trees and the regimental commander had a small tent there.

General Encourages Troops.

"On the way up the trail, Gen. Eichelberger distributed salt pills and words of encouragement to the troops waiting to go into the attack. Durdin and I sat in the mud around the command post waiting for the first phase of the push, which was to be an air raid. The raid was to be followed by an artillery barrage, and then the infantry was going forward.

"While we were sitting there the phone rang and a voice from up in the lines said, 'Our artillery is falling short.' Gen. Eichelberger said he didn't believe it. He said, 'I'm going up there and find out.' With this he hurried up the trail."

Noderer said the general had been gone only a few minutes when a colonel returned and asked the two American correspondents if they wanted to go with the general.

"We Went," Noderer Says.

"My idea of the way to cover a war is not to go forward to see if the artillery is falling short," the correspondent said. "But what are you going to do when a general asks you? We went."

Noderer said that by the time they reached a point where they could observe the fall of the artillery fire there was no indication that the fire was short. He explained that the Japanese have a trick of discharging a 110 millimeter mortar into our lines when they hear our artillery go off. This is intended to demoralize our troops by making them think our shells are falling into their own lines.

"All this time American planes were roaring overhead dropping 500 pound bombs on the Japs a few hundred yards away," Noderer said. "The impact of the bombs made the swamp quiver like jelly. Even after the bombs went off, the trees kept swaying as tho in an earthquake.

General Won't Take Off Stars.

"The bombing was followed by a series of loud explosions to the rear of our lines, followed by a long drawn whistling overhead and then a crash as our artillery smashed into the enemy positions. The general's aides were trying to get him to take the three stars off his collar. They told him the Jap snipers always tried to pick off the officers."

The general refused this advice, saying, "What's the use of being up here if no one knows who I am? I want these boys to know I'm in here with them," Noderer related.

The correspondent said that when Gen. Eichelberger gave the signal for the infantry attack, the general seized a Tommy gun and sprayed the top of a palm tree 100 yards away.

"We were about 10 feet behind the general sitting in a shallow trench," Noderer said. "Twenty feet away one of our mortars was throwing bombs toward a Jap machine gun nest on the edge of Buna village. The Japs replied with a shower of automatic weapon fire, and in a matter of seconds it was so noisy you couldn't hear yourself think."

Directs Drive Despite Bullets.

Noderer said that Gen. Eichelberger paid no attention to the bullets whistling by him and walked about the area actively directing the attack. He found time, however, to shout, "You correspondents keep your heads down," advice which Noderer said was promptly followed.

Noderer described the one occasion when the general took cover.

"The Japs started working down the trail with mortars," he said. "They lobbed them toward us systematically—each one bursting a little closer. We knew if they kept it up, they'd plant one in our trench. As the bursts came closer and closer, Eichelberger came over and sat with us. Nobody said anything.

"I was trying to make some notes when a bomb threw some dirt over my notebook. And that was as close as the mortars came. The Japs, who are methodical little fellows, swung their mortar around and started back up the trail. That was the end of that."

Noderer said the American troops pushed forward and reached the sea between Buna village and Buna mission after about 35 minutes of fighting. Firing then stopped, except for occasional machine gun bursts and bullets from snipers, he said, and he and Durdin advanced about 50 yards to what had been a Jap bivouac.

"The Japs apparently had fled in great haste," he said. "Packed suitcases and haversacks lay all around. Some of them contained hand mirrors, powder, lipstick and women's clothing. These may have belonged to Japanese nurses who had been reported in the Buna area. All this seemed to indicate the Japs were getting ready to beat a hasty retreat, but our attack caught them before they could get away."

Noderer said the men's suitcases contained all sorts of knickknacks, including stationery and calling cards. "It seems they thought they were going some place," he commented.

5 Crew Members Missing as Tug Capsizes and Sinks

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 6 (AP).—Five crew members of the tug J. M. Taylor were missing today after the craft capsized and sank in the Delaware river between Philadelphia and Camden, N. J. A railroad barge which sank Saturday is believed to have heaved up and tipped over the tug. The missing men were listed as: Capt. Alton Murray, Marley Park, Md.; Norman Hickman, a deckhand; Ole Knutsan; Andrew Benekos, fireman, and Pasquale P. Boccassino, all of Philadelphia, and the ship's cook, unidentified by name. Four crew members were rescued.

U. S. FLYERS TOSS ANYTHING, EVEN BOTTLES, AT JAPS

The army air forces are throwing everything they have at the Japanese—even pop bottles—Lt. Harry H. Wise Jr., 23 years old, co-pilot of a Flying Fortress and a veteran of nearly 200 hours of combat flying in less than four months, said yesterday.

And "pop bottle bombs" can be mighty effective, said Lt. Wise, who has been bombing Japs in the Solomons, including Guadalcanal. He arrived home unexpectedly yesterday morning for a 15 day visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Wise, Bruce avenue, Flossmoor; his brother, Joseph, 13, and sister, Mrs. Warren Wheeler, 1500 Oak avenue, Evanston.

Employed by Tribune.

Lt. Wise was an employé of THE TRIBUNE'S classified advertising department and was studying at Northwestern university when he joined the air forces on Christmas day, 1941. He has been recommended for the air medal and the distinguished flying cross. When his leave is up, Lt. Wise will return to his base.

"I got a lucky break," he said. "I caught a ride on a ferry ship from Honolulu after flying a plane from our base to Hawaii for repairs."

Lt. Wise has gone thru scouting and bombing missions in the south Pacific unscathed altho the pilot, bombardier, gunner, radio operator, and navigator of his plane have been killed. The pilot was killed in a take-off accident shortly before Lt. Wise left the Southwest Pacific.

"That was the only time I didn't fly with him since I got there the first part of last October," Lt. Wise said. "We frequently flew to Guadalcanal and remained there for six or seven days, making short scouting and bombing missions from Henderson field.

Bomb Japs at Munda.

"About the time the Japs were building their base at Munda, we were detailed to harass them. The Japs had been doing the same to us on a smaller scale. They like to work at night. Our job was to keep them busy ducking bombs.

"Our ship was loaded with about 20 fragmentation bombs and two cases of pop bottles. We took off about 11:30 at night and remained in the air over Jap positions until 4:30 a. m. We flew at about 6,000 feet and dropped a bomb and then several pop bottles. Then we'd repeat.

"Those pop bottles give off a screeching howl as they drop that scares the daylights out of the Japs. They sound like a four-tonner. The Japs would have to dive for the trenches. They didn't get any work done and they didn't get any sleep all night long, so our mission was successful."

Directs Plane's Fire.

The job of a Flying Fortress co-pilot is to direct the ship's fire—"and duck," Lt. Wise said.

"It's funny, but the pilot and I sometimes found ourselves ducking—covering up our faces as the Zeros came at us," he said.

"The Zeros never attack any place but at the front of a B-17. It would be suicide for them to try any other approach. When you sit up there in the co-pilot's spot, with beautifully clear vision on all sides, and see those streams of tracer bullets swinging closer as a Zero heads toward your nose, you can't help covering up."

Lt. Comm. O'Hare, Naval Air Hero, Becomes Father

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 7 (AP).—Lt. Comm. Edward H. O'Hare, naval air hero who shot down five Japanese planes and damaged a sixth in a single action last February, became a father today. Mrs. Rita Wooster O'Hare gave birth to an eight pound two ounce baby girl at De Paul hospital. The infant was named Kathleen. O'Hare is a former Chicagoan.

THE QUESTION.

On what subject do you never expect to agree with your new husband or wife? [Asked of marriage license applicants.]

WHERE ASKED.

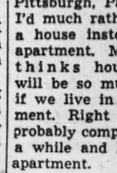
Marriage license bureau, County building.

THE ANSWERS.

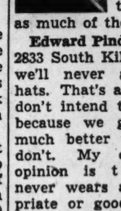
William R. Sickles, 2d lieutenant, New York City—We carry on a constant debate whether to establish our home in New York City or Chicago. I prefer New York and I've lived in both places. My fiancée likes Chicago and doesn't want to leave it. Sooner or later we'll have to come to some agreement.

Clara Jo Cooper, assistant publishing company production manager, 5748 Drexel boulevard—I can't change my fiancé's aversion to the color Kelly green. He doesn't like it and never buys me anything in that shade. He has tried to talk me out of it, but my very best dresses are still in that bright color.

Norman Seltzer, private, air corps, Pittsburgh, Pa.—I've always thought I'd much rather live in a house instead of an apartment. My fiancée thinks housekeeping will be so much easier if we live in an apartment. Right now we'll probably compromise for a while and live in an apartment.



Frances Paschal, telephone operator, 3757 West Ogden avenue—We'll always have problems. Every time I dress up for a special evening out he'd like it much better if we were spending a quiet evening at home. It's going to be a hard problem to settle, too, because I'm not as much of the home type as he.



Edward Pindak, apprentice seaman, 2833 South Kildare avenue—I'm sure we'll never agree on hats. That's a topic we don't intend to discuss because we get along much better when we don't. My one-sided opinion is that she never wears an appropriate or good looking hat—and naturally she defends herself.

Arlene Keefe, defense worker, 322 West 60th street—My fiancée thinks that playing cards is about the most enjoyable way to spend an evening. I'd rather do almost anything else and can already imagine myself being an unwilling fourth at the table. There's a chance I might change my mind, but I'd rather he would.

Kenney Awards Medal to Chicago Flying Officer

ALLIED HDG., SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Feb. 7 (AP).—Hard working officers and enlisted men of Gen. Douglas McArthur's air force, many of whom were on more than 25 missions in a month's time, have been awarded the air medal by Lt. Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of allied air forces in the southwest Pacific. Among them was 2d Lt. John H. Griffith, 8533 South Carpenter street, Chicago. The citation praised "meritorious achievement" while participating in the aerial flights in various areas of the southwest Pacific.

COLONEL PRAISES CHICAGO TROOPS HE LED IN BATTLE

We'll Hear More of Them, Says Nelson.

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Tribune war correspondent who has just returned from the southwest Pacific.]

Col. Le Roy E. Nelson, the only Illinois National Guard colonel to have seen action in the Solomons, has returned to the United States from Guadalcanal, where he led his regiment of Chicago boys in the capture of strategic Mount Austen.

Col. Nelson has been replaced by Col. Alex George. Nelson, who previously lived at the Lake Shore Athletic club, Chicago, has been on active service since March 5, 1941, and abroad since Jan. 23 of last year.

"You're going to hear plenty about our Chicago outfit," Col. Nelson said. "They fought excellently. I'm proud as hell of them."

Congratulated by Patch.

The colonel said the biggest kick he got out of the whole Guadalcanal fighting was a reconnaissance he made over the enemy lines in a two seater marine plane. His observations on this flight enabled him to plan the envelopment which ultimately lead to the reduction of Mount Austen after 22 days of fighting, he said.

As they swung over a jap patrol at low altitude, Col. Nelson manned the twin machine guns in the rear cockpit and let two streams of lead fly.

Nelson was congratulated by Maj. Gen. A. M. Patch for "taking your regiment without previous battle experience into combat, facing unusual and most difficult terrain and a determined and experienced enemy force."

Voices Appreciation.

Patch added, "I wish to express my appreciation of the earnest service you've rendered and the loyal manner in which you carried out the policies of this command in the training and command of your Chicago outfit. With your experience I feel that you can be of real service in the training of new troops for combat in this area."

This correspondent saw Col. Nelson as long ago as last June, putting his troops thru the jumps in New Caledonia in preparation for the battle he knew was coming.

In a letter to Nelson, Col. George, his successor, complimented him on solving the tactical problem of capturing Hill 27 the second phase of the battle for Mount Austen.

A WORLD WAR VETERAN.

Nelson commanded a battalion of the 122d field artillery in France during the World war. It was there that he met Mrs. Nelson, the former Mme. Leonie Conzemius, a member of a prominent Luxemburg family, in whose home he was billeted while serving with the army of occupation. After the war he returned to the Illinois National Guard, serving as chief of staff of the 33rd division and later as commander of the 132d infantry. Previous to the war he had been an officer in the old 1st cavalry.

18 YEAR OLD MARINE WOUNDED, WIDOWED MOTHER INFORMED

Mrs. Gertrude Moffat, 842 Bradley place, widowed mother of three sons, was informed by the marine corps yesterday that her oldest son, Pvt. James E. Moffat, 18 years old, was wounded in action. Moffat, who was believed to have been serving in the Solomon Islands war area, left Amundsen High school a year ago to volunteer for military service.

Pvt. J. E. Moffat.

WOMEN SOUGHT FOR TRAINING IN AIRCRAFT WORK

A salary of $100 per month over a training period of 15 weeks followed by employment at $1,860 per year plus approximately 21 per cent for overtime are the financial returns for women who become WAITS [Women Aircraft Instrument Trainees].

The Army Air Service Command school of instruments urged women to apply for the war training. Applicants should go to the Chicago School of Aircraft Instruments, 2200 Lawrence avenue.

No experience or educational qualifications are required. Entrance is based on the applicant's ability to pass a civil service mechanical aptitude test.

Splendid Cough Relief Is Easily Mixed at Home

No Cooking. Makes Big Saving.

To get quick and satisfying relief from coughs due to colds, mix this recipe in your kitchen. Once tried, you'll never be without it.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one-cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This makes a full pint of splendid medicine and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is amazing. You can feel it take hold in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

MURPHY UPHOLDS GOV. PEYROUTON'S RULE OF ALGERIA

MacMillan Agrees British Support Giraud Move.

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, Feb. 7 (AP).—Robert Murphy, United States minister, and Harold MacMillan, British resident minister, declared today there were no differences between them or their governments on North Africa's political problems.

Robert Murphy.

Discussing Generals Henri Giraud and Charles de Gaulle, Murphy declared the state department and the British foreign office had not objected to Marcel Peyrouton as governor-general of Algeria. The appointment of Peyrouton, formerly attaché to the Vichy regime, provoked widespread criticism.

Explaining the appointment, Murphy said, "Peyrouton's appointment was requested by Giraud on the grounds that he was an able administrator and knew North Africa." Murphy said it was approved by Gen. Eisenhower [Lt. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, allied commander in chief]. The state department and the British foreign office were kept fully informed and neither made any objections; if they had, the question probably would have been reopened, altho Eisenhower had full power to overrule them, he said.

State Department Helped on Trip.

The state department had been asked to expedite and did expedite Peyrouton's departure from South America for North Africa, Murphy said. He expressed the belief that, if given time, Giraud would remove many features of the Vichy régime in North Africa which were considered undesirable by Britain and the United States.

"We are not here to impose our political will upon this country," Murphy continued. MacMillan nodded assent.

"It must be remembered," MacMillan said, "that the only reason we are here is to beat the enemy." He stressed the release of political prisoners, remarking "only one or two remain in custody and neither Murphy nor myself is in a position to ask for their release."

Refers to Mysterious Prisoner.

This reference was to those held following the assassination of Adm. Jean Darlan. One, so held, claims to be a friend of Americans. This person, [so far unidentified] was a high Darlan official at Vichy and a royalist supporter. Murphy and MacMillan expressed confidence that Giraud and De Gaulle would work in agreement.

It was pointed out that the wives of Giraud and Gen. Jean Marie Bergeret have been imprisoned by Germans in France. Bergeret is another whose close connection with Giraud in North Africa has come in for criticism from London and the United States.

[Indicating that Gen. Giraud is extending his revisions of the North African régime to the military command, a Reuters' dispatch to London from Algiers said Gen. Koeltz was expected to succeed Gen. Alphonse Juin as commander in chief of forces under Gen. Giraud. Gen. Juin was formerly Vichy commander in chief in North Africa.]

Maj. Young, Former Lansing Flyer, Missing in Action

Maj. Donn Young, former commercial pilot at Lansing and a National Guard flyer, has been reported missing in action since Jan. 18, his wife, Marie, 7604 South Shore drive, said yesterday. Maj. Young went to Australia with the air forces 13 months ago and, as a captain, was operations officer of an air force group in New Guinea for six months. He was advanced to major, and a month ago was assigned to the general staff. He has two children, Susie, 5, and Corwin, 3.

RESCUES TWO IN FIRE; DIES.

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP).—Henry Ernest Langdon Bruce, 74 years old, died of suffocation today after rescuing a young woman and a baby from a fire which swept an apartment building. Friends said Bruce, a retired actor, appeared on the American stage from 1917 to 1932.

BRITISH HOLD UP NAZI ADVANCE IN TUNISIAN HEIGHTS

Patrols and Planes Make Jabs at Enemy.

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP).—Allied forces in Tunisia harassed the axis with short jabs by land and air in spite of continued bad weather today as the British 8th army, closing in from the east, was reported readying itself to attempt a knockout blow against Marshal Erwin Rommel's African corps.

Near Djebel Mansour, also known as Hill 648, an important height 20 miles southwest of Pont du Fahs, British troops dug in and checked a further German advance.

The French high command reported great patrol activity in the Pichon-Ousseltia area, and the repulse of an enemy attack on the Kef el Rhalla Shoot Up German Trucks.

While the weather limited air activity to brief strafing sweeps, both British and American ground patrols continued small sorties all along the western Tunisian front.

British bombers, escorted by fighters, shot up a number of German trucks in a low level attack southwest of Pont du Fahs. American fighter planes silenced an axis anti-aircraft gun position 15 miles northeast of German held Faid pass and burned two vehicles on a road in the same area.

Low flying allied fighter planes attacked trains in the axis supply bastion of Sicily yesterday, according to the Cairo communique, following up a bombing attack on Palermo, Sicilian harbor, on Friday night. One plane was reported lost in yesterday's action.

Down 80 Axis Planes.

The 12th United States air force reported that during the week ending Feb. 5, American planes destroyed 80 enemy aircraft in the Tunisian campaign and damaged 72 others, compared with 28 American planes lost or missing.

[An Italian high command communique said there was lively artillery fire along the Libyan-Tunisian border by opposing elements. The German communique said German bombers attacked an allied convoy in the waters northwest of Oran, Algerian naval base, and damaged three transports aggregating 18,000 tons. Axis planes bombed ships at anchor in Tripoli harbor, the Italians reported.]

ELEVATOR MISHAP VICTIM DIES.

Edmond Brown, 63 years old, colored, who was crushed Saturday between the side of the elevator car and the second floor in the Arazon hotel, 5401 Cornell avenue, died yesterday in Illinois Central hospital. He lived at 3144 South State street.

"I'd walk many a mile just to hand him these Camels!"
CAMEL
MAYBE HE WEARS the O.D. of the Army—maybe the blue of the Navy and Coast Guard—or the forest green of the Marines—it's all the same: Camels, with that matchless "I'd walk a mile for—" flavor, will be welcome as often as you can send them. So—send him a carton of Camels today.

It's the most welcome gift you can send him... a carton of Camels—the soldiers' favorite

SURE, you'd rather hand them to him . . . but you don't have to see him to know that he'll appreciate a carton of Camels. For with men in all the services, cigarettes are a gift they want most from home.

And when you send him Camels—the mild, slow-burning cigarette—you're sending the brand men in the service prefer. Army, Navy, Marines, Coast Guard—the favorite is Camel.* And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.

First in the Service

*The favorite cigarette with men in the Army, Navy, Marines, and the Coast Guard is Camel. (Based on actual sales records in Post Exchanges, Sales Commissaries, Ship's Service Stores, Ship's Stores, and Canteens.)

AXIS BUILDS UP LARGE STORE OF ARMS IN TUNISIA

Benefit by Short Supply Lines; Planes Faster.

BY JOHN THOMPSON,
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. ARMY IN THE FIELD, Tunisia, Feb. 4 [Delayed]—[Passed by military censor].—Because the Germans' supply lines to Tunisia are far shorter, the allies now are faced with the possibility that momentarily the enemy may be superior numerically in most arms, altho some of the German equipment Marshal Erwin Rommel is bringing up from Libya probably is severely worn by the long haul across the desert.

The Germans are reported to be building storehouses for replacements and repair of damaged equipment at Gabes, Sfax and intermediate points on the Tunisian east coast while continuing to use Bizerte and Tunis to bring in troops and more supplies.

Information available at headquarters here indicate that Rommel kept a fast pace ahead of the British 8th army in trying to conserve the bulk of his men and material.

British 8th Army Extended.

Supply, meanwhile, is the chief difficulty of the British 8th army, which has been supplied thru the middle east and whose lines now extend thru Libya and Tripolitania. Until the British succeed in rehabilitating Tripoli harbor from the effects of bombings and demolitions, the 8th army's progress may be expected to be slow.

In the air over North Africa, as far as the total number of planes is concerned, the allies are maintaining an edge over the axis, altho superiority in any one sector may be attained momentarily by either side by throwing in a large force of planes at the expense of other localities.

As an example, allied bombers definitely have exerted superior force in blasting the axis bases in Italy, Sicily, Sardinia, and Tunisia and along the eastern coastal path of Rommel's withdrawal.

Need in Many Localities.

But in Tunisia there have been so many localities which needed air cover or ground strafing or the bombing of enemy concentrations that the allied air force was not able at all times to maintain superiority.

This was evident at the battle for Sened station [west of Maknassy], when Stukas [German dive bombers] appeared the moment American fighters retired. The same situation also prevailed at times at Faid and earlier in the Ousseltia valley, in central Tunisia.

Most of the fighting has been done by American P-40s [Warhawks] which, pilots say, cannot out-climb, out-dive, or out-speed the German Messerschmitt 109s and Focke-Wulf 190s. The pilots would like to see the new British Spitfires and American P-38s [Lightnings], which are able to hold their own with the Germans at low altitudes.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 7.—Company A of the 341st Engineers, United States army, picked its "sweetheart" today. But the soldiers couldn't choose between the beauty of two Hollywood actress twins—Lee and Lyn Wilde—so they picked a "joint sweetheart" and honored both. "This was done," they wrote the twins, who hail from East St. Louis, Ill., "because the men think that each of you is more beautiful than any girl we ever saw."

Report 14 British Flyers Forced Down in Turkey

ANKARA, Turkey, Feb. 6 [Delayed]—(AP).—A report circulated here tonight that 14 British flyers in two planes had made forced landings in Turkish territory, probably in Thrace, and were en route to the Ankara district for internment.

ZOUAVES FIGHT 5 TO 1 ODDS WITH RIFLES OF 1914

Thin Line Holds 36 Hours; Hold Their Line 36 Hours;

BY NOLAND NORGAARD.

WITH AMERICAN FORCES IN SOUTHERN TUNISIA, Feb. 5 [Delayed]—(AP).—They sat after dinner, singing jauntily and drinking wine—those 16 officers of a famous Zouave regiment—and you knew that France had been reborn in the gallant army fighting in North Africa, because these men had just come thru the toughest experience of any troops in Tunisia.

Their battalion manned 7½ miles of the Tunisian front, "spread out"—their major illustrated by dipping a finger in his wine and drawing it across the table — "thinner than that."

They lacked modern equipment, and when Germans and Italians five times their number attacked with tanks, dive bombers, mortars and all the other paraphernalia of lightning warfare, the Zouaves fought back with rifles of 1914 vintage, and a few antiquated horsedrawn 75s.

Repulse Attacks for 36 Hours.

For 36 hours they savagely beat off attacks. By then they were surrounded and their position looked hopeless. But they refused to give up and when American planes dropped notes telling of a possible escape route, they tried to fight their way out of the tightening ring of axis troops.

More than half of the officers and men never made it, but those who did are merely resting a bit before they go back to fight again.

They invited us, a handful of Americans, to their table and we learned that two of the merriest of the survivors were priests who laid aside their robes to fight.

Equipment Two Old Trucks.

They said nothing about one French division which managed to get to the front when its total motor equipment consisted of two old trucks, nor of the teams of horses and mules which slowly bring up French supplies on the same road along which columns of American and British trucks are moving.

Modern United States war supplies have been promised them.

A cigar chewing general of the United States armored forces told me that: "Seeing them move those old 75s up with mules is enough to bring tears to your eyes."

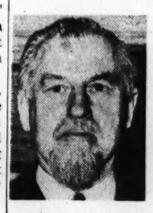
BELGIAN WARNS NAZIS HOPE FOR SOCIALIST UNITS

Germany no longer believes in a military victory but has not given up her ambition to transform Europe into a group of national socialist states, Dr. Frans Van Cauwelaert, Belgian minister of state and president of the house of representatives, said yesterday before members of the Menorah society of Northwestern university in the Midland hotel.



Dr. Frans Van Cauwelaert.

Dr. Van Cauwelaert outlined the systematic manner in which Germany had broken down the political framework of Belgium and ruined her economic structure to make the country eventually dependent on Germany in every way. The same procedure has been carried out in all other occupied countries, he said.

He warned Americans against leniency when the military phase of the war is ended.

IN MEMORIAM

★

NOT LONG AGO I received in the mail a sober, engraved announcement which read as follows: "The Army Air Forces, Southeast Training Center, Announces the Graduation of Class 43A, Spence Field, on Thursday, January 14th, 1943, Moultrie, Georgia."

Attached to the announcement was a personal card: "John M. Russell, Lieutenant, Air Forces, United States Army."

"So Johnny made it," I said to myself; "I knew he would."

Then I wrote him a note of congratulation, and ended by saying, "I hope you come back as Doolittle's boss."

A few days later, the letter I had sent came back to my desk unopened. Across the envelope had been written "Unclaimed."

The office girl who gave it to me said, "Johnny was killed before he got your letter."

Johnny crashed on the day of his graduation—died in rehearsal for the great performance he would surely have given as a fighter pilot on the battle front.

★ ★ ★

When I first knew about Johnny, he was a Western Union messenger boy in Detroit. Our branch office there, which was not large and not too prosperous, had no messenger boy of its own. Whenever the office phoned Western Union for a boy to carry an important message or package to some place in the city, Johnny turned up with surprising regularity. When the people in the office began to kid him about this, he answered, "I'm going to work for you folks some day. I want you to get acquainted with me."

Johnny continued to appear and to perform with speed and intelligence. What's more, he managed to put such personality into even the job of messenger boy that the folks in the office were always glad to see him. Gradually they began to think of him as a fixture.

Then one day Johnny appeared and took from his pocket a slip of paper. "Look," he said to the manager, "I've kept track of the money you spend on messenger fees and it's enough to hire me by the week. If you did, you'd get a lot more for your money, because I've been asking about your work and there are a lot of other things I could do around here that would help."

So Johnny went to work for Young & Rubicam, and soon he started in night school. He wanted to learn the advertising business from top to bottom, and lost no time in getting started.

It wasn't long before everybody was trying to help Johnny learn and get ahead. His fame spread to the home office, and when the executives from there went to Detroit they always had a visit with Johnny and helped explain the business to him. He enjoyed a standing new in our history of office boys.

People said, maybe it was because he was so young, or had never had a chance to go to high school, or was so small that he measured no more than five feet five and weighed perhaps a hundred and twenty.

All these things helped, no doubt. But the big thing was you felt that Johnny believed everything good and great that he had ever heard or read about people and about life. And you felt that Johnny had become what he believed.

Soon Johnny was in the home office, still studying and still climbing. Everybody watched his progress with relish and enjoyment as if it were their own. Johnny was ambitious, but not ambitious at the other fellow's expense. He wanted to do a job, but not to take somebody else's job.

"This is a wonderful kind of business," Johnny used to say. "You can dig into all sides of everything—marketing, manufacturing, research, writing, and art. It's an education for a fellow who never had any, and I'm going to learn all I can about it."

Then one day—long before Pearl Harbor—Johnny came to me and said, "I'm going to have to interrupt my study of advertising until after the war. I'm going to study for the Air Force. I want to be a fighter pilot."

"What are you going to have to take, Johnny?" I asked.

"History, English, algebra, and trigonometry—at night," said Johnny.

Pretty tough going that schedule was for a boy who had never been to high school. Johnny discovered that fact in the next months, but he never got discouraged, never lost his smile, and plugged ahead.

After many months, he stopped in my office again and said, "I've passed my examination and I've been accepted. I'm leaving next week, but I hope you'll let me come back after the war, because I've still got to learn this advertising business, and this is where I'd like to learn it."

"You bet you can come back, Johnny," I replied. "Everybody will want you to and we'll make a job for you if there's a job to be made. But are you dead sure you'll want to come back? Are you sure that flying and aviation haven't got in your blood?"

"No, it's not that," Johnny answered. "I can come back to the advertising business and still fly. Maybe I can own my own plane. It's not that—it's the war. It's got me."

Johnny didn't know—in words—why he wanted to fight this war before we were in it.

He wasn't fighting, like the Nazis, because his country's leaders had painted a picture of gain to him—of world conquest, of rich new territory—of domination and loot.

He wasn't fighting, either, because his homeland had been despoiled and his back was to the wall, like the Russians'.

He was fighting because he felt, without having to think about it, that Johnny couldn't be Johnny in a world like Hitler's.

★ ★ ★

It is tragic that Johnny couldn't have helped to win the victory. And it is the world's loss that Johnny won't be here to counsel on the peace, for Johnny would have been wise.

Johnny couldn't have influenced senators, congressmen, or masses of people. But Johnny could have influenced a few—his mother and his father, his girl and his friends in the office, and everyone will be needed on the side of wisdom when it comes to making the peace.

Johnny knew before many of his elders did that we cannot wish war away and that we cannot "isolate" against it. We tried that a generation ago, but about all we accomplished was the death of Woodrow Wilson and the birth of Hitlerism—and a worse World War.

Many of Johnny's elders will feel the same after this war as they did after the last one. They will be thinking of the fate of boys like Johnny—and they will want to save the generation ahead from similar tragedy.

Many of them will still not have learned that you can't stop wars by publicity campaigns against the sellers of munitions, or by international agreements on paper to cut down armaments. Or if some have learned that those things won't work, then they will think we can be safe by locking ourselves in the house and building ourselves a Maginot wall of ships and airplanes big enough to bankrupt us. (But still not big enough to protect us).

We don't hear much of that talk yet, because everybody is trying to win the war, but it is the thing we are going to have to fight against in the hearts and minds of parents if we want to win the peace.

The kids who come back will know it can't be done that way. And they will have plenty of nerve to tackle the job of building a new world team. A world team to keep the peace. A good, husky team armed with something more than a book of rules.

The kids will know instinctively that peace is like freedom—if you want to keep it you have to be prepared to fight for it. So let's listen to them. Johnny won't be here, but his pals will.

FLYNN BATTLES TO REGAIN POWER FOR F. D. R. IN '44

Hopes to Slip Back Into Old Party Posts.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7.—Disclosure in New York tonight that Edward J. [Paving Blocks] Flynn is to be restored to his former position as Democratic leader of the borough of the Bronx is interpreted by Democratic leaders here as a start toward rehabilitation of Flynn politically and an attempt to repair the damage to the fourth term movement wrought in the course of the affair Flynn in the senate.

When Flynn's nomination as minister to Australia and Presidential roving ambassador in the Southwest Pacific was pending Senators Bennett Champ Clark [D., Mo.] and Carl A. Hatch [D., N. M.] served notice they would not vote to confirm the appointment if Flynn remained New York members of the Democratic national committee in violation of the Hatch act forbidding political activities of government officials.

Back at Old Stand.

Inasmuch as two votes might decide his fate, Flynn lost no time in resigning from the national committee. He already had resigned as national chairman and been succeeded by Postmaster General Walker. At the same time he resigned from the bronx leadership.

The senate having refused to confirm his diplomatic appointment, Flynn is back at the old political stand in New York. A maneuver to get him restored to the bronx leadership has been figured out.

Charles A. Buckley is to resign as leader of the 8th New York assembly district. Flynn is to succeed him, and immediately be elected chairman of the Bronx county executive committee. Then Flynn will step out as 8th assembly district leader and Buckley will step back in.

Farley May Block Him.

Presumably Flynn then will begin a fight to regain his place as New York member of the Democratic national committee. National Chairman Walker has ruled that Flynn is out of the committee by resignation and that his successor shall be elected by the New York Democratic state central committee.

A struggle may develop between Flynn and James A. Farley, arch opponent of the fourth term for Mr. Roosevelt. Farley is chairman of the state committee and presumably will endeavor to get the national committee membership for himself or for some other opponent of the fourth term movement.

Official Washington still is reverberating with the echoes and implications of the refusal of the overwhelmingly Democratic senate to confirm Flynn for the ambassadorial post.

A widespread view among Democratic politicians is that the fourth term movement for Mr. Roosevelt has suffered a staggering blow—from several loads of paving blocks. According to this view the President is the victim of a combination of political circumstances that even his famed political prescience did not discern.

President Guessed Wrong.

In the first place, Mr. Roosevelt guessed wrong in thinking he could command the support of enough Democratic senators to get the appointment of "Dear Eddie" confirmed despite the scandals attaching to Flynn's public record.

As it turned out, nearly half the 57 Democrats in the senate either remained unconvinced that Flynn was ignorant of the paving of his courtyard with New York City paving blocks laid by city labor or deemed this political boss unqualified for a diplomatic post in a critical area of the war. Flynn therefore definitely was defeated by Democrats.

In the second place, the tactics of the fight cost the President the control of the New York membership in the Democratic national committee.

The upshot is that Mr. Farley and associated opponents of a Roosevelt fourth term are in the saddle in New York and in a position to influence profoundly the selection little more than a year hence of the most numerous delegation to the Democratic national convention. Without the delegation of his state, Mr. Roosevelt could not expect to get far toward a fourth term nomination.

Election Saps Prestige.

The third important circumstance is that Mr. Roosevelt's political prestige suffered not so much from impact with the paving blocks as with the November election. The election returns showed that the north had turned against Mr. Roosevelt and his New Deal. But it soon transpired that the Democratic south also had turned against the New Deal party. The White House was bewildered by the action of Boss Ed Crump of Tennessee in turning thumbs down on Flynn, but the southern politicians understood it. Crump had read the election returns and was reflecting the attitude of his section.

In the election the President lost the farm vote and a good deal of his support in the large industrial centers where labor had been overwhelmingly pro-New Deal. His hold on the big metropolitan machines also was badly shaken. Neither Tammany in New York City, nor Boss Frank Hague in New Jersey, nor the Kelly-Nash machine in Chicago was able to deliver so effectively as in previous elections.

In the Roosevelt entourage in which the fourth term is being plotted these untoward circumstances may annoy but do not discourage. Roosevelt partisans calculate that what appear at the moment to be political handicaps will be swept away by popular opinion on the demands of the nation's best interests in war and peace. They believe that if the war still is in progress in the summer and fall of 1944 Mr. Roosevelt will be the popular choice to wage it to a successful conclusion and that if the war shall be ended he will be deemed essential to the construction of an enduring peace.

FREE MAIL SENDS YANK POSTHASTE OUT OF THE ARMY

Soldier, 15, Sorry He Didn't Buy Postage.

Edward J. Olechowski, 15 years old, of Detroit was discharged posthaste out of the army yesterday. Olechowski, who was stationed at the Army Air Forces Technical Training school in the Stevens hotel, forgot that free mail betrays the writer's whereabouts and when his folks received such a "return address" from him they reported his true age.

"When I think that for the price of a 3 cent stamp I could still be in the army, I could kick myself," Olechowski mourned.

Previously Wrote Parents.

Olechowski enlisted in Detroit on Dec. 9, giving his age as 18 years and 8 months, without his parents' knowledge. He kept them posted as to his health and well being while at Fort Custer, Mich., and at Miami Beach, Fla., by sending stamped letters with no return address.

Meanwhile he was making use of the free mail service in writing to his friends at Greusel High school in Detroit, listing his number, rating, and post in the upper left hand corner of each envelope. The friends understood that his enlistment was a secret and kept quiet, but Olechowski gave it away himself with a free mail home.

Send Wire to General.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Omufry Olechowski of 5957 Elmwood street, Detroit, wired Brig. Gen. Albert L. Sneed in command of the air forces school here to send their boy home.

"Ever since the attack on Pearl Harbor I've wanted to be in the army air forces," Olechowski said. "I took a cadet course at home, but was tossed out because of high blood pressure. Then this chance to get in the ground crew came along and I grabbed it on seven hours' notice."

Olechowski, who is almost 6 feet tall and looks every bit of his claimed age, doctored up the birth certificate of a deceased older brother to serve as admittance to the army. He plans now to return to school and take courses which will help him get back in the army in a few years.

How You—a Woman can speed your country's victory

This is 1943. This is a year of great Allied offensives—crushing blows at the enemies of our way of life.

TODAY, on the threshold of all-out attack, America needs every able-bodied fighting man for combat duty. The full strength of our Army can be used decisively only when the places of many thousands of soldiers now at work behind the lines are taken by women.

When the Army called for men to volunteer, even before Pearl Harbor, the instant response broke all previous enlistment records. Now the President has authorized 150,000 volunteers for the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps—immediately. The sooner these women are trained, the sooner the men they replace can help to win battles.

Tens of thousands of WAAC auxiliaries and officers already are enrolled. They are proving that the American woman can do a man's job in a man's army and do it magnificently. They are taking over important duties in the Air Forces, the Signal Corps and other branches of the Ground Forces and the Service of Supply. Some already are serving abroad.

Before this crucial year ends, the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps will need more officers than there were in the Regular U. S. Army in 1939.

Days are passing—days vital to American victory. If you have been thinking about joining the WAAC, the time to do it is at once. If you are a healthy United States citizen, age 21 to 44, inclusive, any race, color or creed, go to the nearest U. S. Army Recruiting and Induction Station today, and get full information on the openings, pay, promotions and training in the WAAC. Total War won't wait. Your country needs you now!

GILLETTE BLASTS 'LOCUST HORDE' IN U.S. BUREAUS

Tells Democrats to Place America's Needs First.

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 7 (AP).—Sen. Guy M. Gillette [D., Ia.] made a sweeping denunciation of unnecessary government agencies last night and took issue with the administration's postwar aims.

Sen. Guy M. Gillette.

Speaking with a bluntness that stunned 700 fellow Democrats at a $25 a plate Jackson day dinner, Gillette declared "We have to clean house," during an acrid arraignment of some war agencies.

"We can't do it," he asserted, "by refusing to admit our mistakes, without eliminating some of the hordes of locusts living off the people thru agencies that aren't necessary."

Puts America First.

The senior Iowa senator, who frequently has announced he will retire after his present term, said the nation must consider her own necessities before taking into her lap the burdens of the whole world.

"No one could or should be selfishly inconsiderate of our international responsibilities after the war," he said, "but to assume that this world will enter upon a utopian period of unselfishness and altruism and that human nature with its traits and temperaments will have changed overnight would be an assumption which would contribute to a tragic failure to meet our clear responsibilities.

"Charity should begin at home even tho it should not stay there.

Home Planning First.

"After we have placed America first, not in point of time, but first in our planning and thinking, then there will be ample time to take up our obligations to the world in which our nation will have to live."

Turning to the farm situation Gillette said, "The thing that irritated me most in congress" is the "entirely unjustified attack upon farming in violation of the solemn enactment by congress of an agreement to pay parity prices."

"Out of a clear sky came a proposal to scrap that agreement and compel farmers to take less than parity," he said.

"The farmers will accept parity, less than parity, or any other livable condition necessary to public safety and welfare—along with any other group."

PARTIES SHIFT TO HIGH GEAR IN MAYORAL RACE

Regular Entries Begin 15 Day Drive.

With the mayoral primaries scheduled two weeks from tomorrow, both the regular organizations, Republican and Democratic, plan to swing into high pressure work behind their candidates, George B. McKibbin and Mayor E. J. Kelly.

Until now the regular entries have not stirred themselves very much but for the next 15 days their activities will increase steadily while workers double and redouble labors in the precincts. Mayor Kelly will deliver the fourth of his series of radio talks on his administration this evening. McKibbin will speak this noon at the City club, will talk over two radio stations Wednesday night and will visit at least the 13 meetings scheduled for him.

Independents Busy, Too.

Handicapped by the lack of substantial organizations behind them the several anti-machine candidates also will increase the tempo of their radio speeches, their principal reliance, in their hope of arousing sentiment against the organizations.

Three of them, the most active in their campaign appeals up to this point, took to the air again yesterday. They are former Judge John H. Lyle and former Ald. Arthur F. Albert, Republicans, and Ald. John S. Boyle [16th], Democrat.

In his radio speech, Lyle charged that Washington bureau heads are ruining at least 1,700 small manufacturing plants in Chicago by ridiculous regulatory orders, "some impossible of compliance." He also charged that Chicago is being discriminated against in the awarding of war contracts.

Chicago Far Down on List.

"Very recently, he said, "I received information from Washington, thru a very reliable source with an official background, that the secretary of labor issued a list of communities in which and to which government contracts were to have been placed by the navy ordnance and the army ordnance departments.

"Chicago was on this list but was close to the bottom, the reason being that the secretary of labor had another list and on this list Chicago was at the top. This was a list of communities in which there was subversive activity and labor racketeering."

Attacks Gov. Green.

In his radio speech, Albert charged that the McKibbin headquarters in the La Salle hotel are staffed with unwilling workers from various state departments in Chicago.

"It is on the same level," he continued, "as the action of Gov. Green in ordering an assessment of 25 per cent of a month's salary during the last election."

Ald. Boyle's most recent radio attack on Mayor Kelly began with a discussion of the financial provisions of the 1926 traction ordinance passed under Mayor William E. Dever.

"On page 99 is set up the cost of the State street subway," he said. "That cost was to be $32,300,000. Property owners of State street were to be assessed 35 per cent of the total cost or the sum of $11,305,000. The property owners of State street agreed to this and thought it a fair deal.

"The present mayor killed the 1926 ordinance and substituted one whereby taxpayers were stuck for the full amount of the subway and property owners of State street paid not one penny."

CITIZENS' GROUP TO PLAN RECRUIT DRIVE FOR WAVES

Plans for a 45 day campaign to recruit more WAVES will be made by a citizens' committee at a luncheon today in the Union League club. Lt. Comm. J. L. Clarkson, procurement officer, will explain the navy's needs for more women recruits. Elmer T. Stevens will be chairman of the meeting. Capt. E. S. Root, director of naval officer procurement, said the campaign is scheduled to start in Chicago Feb. 22. The WAVES recruiting office in room 1175 of the Board of Trade building is now open Monday and Friday evenings from 6 to 9 p. m.

CHILDREN FLEE FIRE IN CHURCH; $14,000 DAMAGE

A fire believed to have been started by candles in the altar boys' sacristy yesterday drove a large number of worshippers, mostly children, from St. Carthage church, 7316 Yale avenue, where mass was being celebrated by the Rev. James Quirk.

As the blaze spread into three schoolrooms adjoining the sacristy, filling the church with smoke, the children, directed by nuns, and parishioners evacuated the church without panic. Father Quirk, assistant priest of the parish, completed celebration of the mass in a convent chapel.

Firemen extinguished the fire within a half hour and the regular 11 and 12 o'clock masses were celebrated. Damage to the buildings and furnishings was estimated as $14,000.

4 Captured After Holdup Admit 2 Other Robberies

Four young men who were captured by the Albany Park police a short time after they boarded a Belmont avenue street car at Sacramento avenue and robbed John Paul, the conductor, of $38, admitted two other robberies, police said yesterday. The four are Charles Messina, 19 years old, 1018 South Winchester avenue; Fiori Gizzi, 18, of 1842 South Winchester avenue; Basil Dinella, 20, of 825 South Winchester avenue, and Jerome Tramontono, 17, of 1107 South Damen avenue.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE PHILIPPINES.

Military reverses such as the United States suffered early in the war with Japan require an accounting. Nations are not permitted to strike off serious defeats as unaccountable and unexplainable. A regard for future welfare demands investigation and the discovery of responsibility. There has been an inquiry into Pearl Harbor. It remains unsatisfactory. It could not be avoided but it could be narrowed in scope. It could be and was restricted to secondary rather than primary causes. That restriction protected high officials in Washington and deprived the country of the benefit of an inquiry without prohibitions.

Pearl Harbor was a costly humiliation, sacrificing many lives and destroying ships, planes, and material. The effect on the war, however, was small as compared with the consequences of the loss of the Philippines. There has been no inquiry into the defeat in the islands. Gen. MacArthur's brilliant defense served to divert attention from the derelictions which made that valorous defense ineffective. The general, with what he had when the war started, could not hold out against the unlimited men and material the Japanese could bring to the attack on the sea, on the land, and in the air.

The story of Bataan and Corregidor has been told. Later it will be told more completely, but there's a feeling that we already know pretty well what happened when the troops, without air protection or hope of reënforcement or new supplies, made their last stand. What preceded the attack and what happened in the first few days remains confused and unclarified.

We know that the air force was insufficient, the air facilities inadequate, and the air defenses virtually nonexistent. But we don't know why this was so or who was responsible for it. An investigation of these causes of defeat and the loss of the islands and the prolongation of the war would lead away from the islands themselves and directly into Washington. That responsibility should be determined by an investigation before the war is much older.

What we have in the way of information is incomplete and to some extent contradictory. William Huie in his book, "The Fight for Air Power," says: "If Brereton and Eubank had had proper anti-aircraft protection; if they had had plenty of interceptors to fight off the Jap attack planes; if they had had detection units located all around the island coastline to warn of the enemy's approach; if they had had dispersed air fields; in short, if they had had organization for air power, the result would have been different. But, as it was, the result was inevitable. It was a sacrificing, delaying action, with makeshift equipment from the beginning. Here is an officer's estimate of the strength he needed to defeat the Japs and hold the Philippines: 50 Fortresses, 250 attack planes, and 500 pursuits. The entire force could have been provided for the cost of two cruisers like the Houston, lost in the Java sea."

Maj. Gen. Brereton was an air officer under Gen. MacArthur. Col. Gene Eubank, now brigadier general, was in command of the bombardment planes sent out from California two months before the attack on such short notice that the new gun turrets were still being installed when the planes had to take off. Both were air officers who had been in the fight for the development of American air power.

Witnesses do not agree as to what happened to the planes when the Japs came over, but it is agreed that there was warning. Mr. Huie, who gets his information from the air officers, says that the field arrangements were such that the planes, which could not be in the air all the time, could not be protected. They were destroyed not by bombs, he says, but by explosive bullets, the Japs wanting the air fields for their own use. Eyewitnesses of the first air attacks were of the impression that the planes had been caught when they came down to refuel and bombed to pieces in a few minutes.

Maj. Carlos Romulo of Gen. MacArthur's staff, in his book "I Saw the Fall of the Philippines," says that he had flown in from Batavia two weeks before the attack and felt a glow of security as he saw 100 magnificent American planes maneuvering in the air. Two weeks later the planes in the air were Japanese and no American planes could rise to meet them. Three hours after the word came from Pearl Harbor, President Quezon heard planes over his summer home in the hills of Baguio and telephoned MacArthur's headquarters.

Romulo says that those planes bombed Camp John Hay, a mile from Baguio, and also Davao in the south, Aparri in the north, and Clark field and Iba landing field. "The next day I stood on the balcony of the Herald building and saw the first enemy planes cut down thru the sky like great aerial bolos." They were flying in "two magnificently formed Vs" which divided to attack the port area, Camp Nichols, Fort McKinley, and Cavite.

Romulo says the planes at Camp Nichols and Fort McKinley were bombed on the ground. "It is true," he says, "that they had been ordered to take off and remain circling in the air. They stayed up all morning till noon. Then the flyers came down to lunch and refuel their planes. The planes came down in perfect echelons and were lined up and waiting on the field when the Japs ripped down out of the skies with their great bombers and unloaded their racks with an aim that was unerring."

That is about the story as told by Comm. Bulkeley and Lt. Kelly in "They Were Expendable." Both Kelly and Bulkeley counted more Jap planes than Col. Romulo thought he saw but all agree that the shock came when the observers, expecting the American fighters to be in the midst of those Jap formations, saw no American ships arise at all.

The failure to hold the Philippines goes back to Washington with all responsibility. Mr. Roosevelt and his cabinet knew that the war was coming. If they had listened to any of their air minded officers who knew what was needed to hold the Philippines, the planes could have been there, the fields would have been prepared, the air force would have been in command of the situation. The Japs would have met an air defense which would have driven them off. The islands now could be in American hands. The Japs would not be holding their positions in Java and the Pacific islands. The war would have been shortened. The facts should be known.

THE WARRIORS FROM WALL STREET.

The testimony of Robert P. Patterson, undersecretary of war, before a joint meeting of the house military and naval affairs committee was a revelation. It was a revelation not only of Mr. Patterson's mind but of the intentions which he shares with all the other Wall street warriors in the war department concerning the future of the civilian population.

Mr. Patterson bluntly proposed that the government seize all spare tires and requisition at least 7 and possibly 8 million passenger cars. He wanted this done, not because the government can find any conceivable use for the cars, but in order that they might be stripped of their tires. The tires would be turned over to the army and the cars could be scrapped for their metal if there were no better use for them.

By this means, according to Mr. Patterson's reasoning, the synthetic rubber program could go hang. So could some millions of the people who depend upon automobiles in whole or in part for transportation. When the four tires Mr. Patterson would leave to civilians were worn out the civilians could walk. They aren't in the army and therefore they aren't comprehended in Mr. Patterson's conception of essentiality.

A solution to the military rubber problem as drastic as this betrays enormous ignorance. It is an operation which, even if successful, would kill the patient. Rubber Administrator William M. Jeffers, the only man in Washington who seems to have the number of his fellow administrators, was quick to point this out.

"I'm not a business-as-usual man," Mr. Jeffers said. "I know that the army and navy must have gasoline and weapons. Where I differ with them is in my belief that the country can't be taken off rubber without a collapse. We must maintain the civilian economy or we lose the war. I object to the general attitude of the army and navy executives toward civilian requirements."

Obviously Mr. Jeffers is right. The difference between him and Undersecretary Patterson is that he believes the rubber problem can be solved and wants to solve it, whereas Mr. Patterson is utterly indifferent or outright hostile to the people and doesn't want to solve it—at least, beyond taking care of the army.

Mr. Patterson's testimony was seconded by James V. Forrestal, undersecretary of the navy, who came out of a Wall street investment banking house. Their obdurate attitude demonstrates that these Wall streeters have no conception of how the affairs of the country are carried on. Evidently they think that the subway runs everywhere.

But there is something more important than their myopia in trying to corner everything for the army and navy, and Mr. Jeffers put his finger on that, too, when he asserted, "It's the job of the army and navy to fight, not to run the nation's business." These men care very little for their fellow citizens who, in quite as true a sense as any Wall streeter, are helping to carry on the war. They especially care little for that article of the Bill of Rights that provides that no person shall be deprived of property without due process of law.

In truth, the Wall streeters have long since become perfectly accustomed to out-New Dealing the New Dealers. Mr. Patterson is on record as proposing what he calls a "draft in reverse," which could succeed in keeping millions of men in uniform long after the fighting is over. His crony in the New York legal circles, Mr. Grenville Clark, who master minds for Secretary of War Stimson, has drawn up a proposed bill to put every man under 65 and every woman under 50 in what he calls "the national service," i. e., at the disposal of the New Deal.

These men can regiment with the best of them. They are more dangerous than the Communists because they have established themselves in positions of great importance. Their methods are hardly distinguishable from those of Hitler's Brown Shirts. It is certainly a strange situation when we find a war against fascism being conducted by such men as these.

CHEATING THE PUPILS.

Harry L. Tate, the principal of the Eli Whitney elementary school, had written the letter which appears in the Voice of the People today before the plan was announced to close the schools for a week for the latest rationing registration. Still, his statements form a concise summary of objections to that plan.

There is no reason why the burden of distributing ration cards should be thrown exclusively on the elementary school teachers. The reason it has been done in the past is that it is probably necessary to use the schools as rationing headquarters, and the teachers are fully equal to the clerical task. Unfortunately, as Mr. Tate shows, during the last 12 months Chicago school pupils have lost about one-tenth of their instruction because their teachers have been required to give their time to rationing.

That is ridiculous. Teachers are hired to teach school, and teaching is a full time task. Diverting teachers to other and less essential work merely cheats their pupils and the parents of the pupils who pay taxes for the support of the school system. Mr. Tate's statement of the evil effects that may be expected is by no means overdrawn.

The job of registration for rationing admittedly carries a heavy clerical burden. It can, however, be carried out without disrupting the school system and suspending instruction for a whole week. Mr. Tate suggests that if the registration were held after classes had been dismissed for the day the teachers might work half of an eight hour shift. This would still place a heavy burden on them, one that would probably affect their classroom efficiency, but at least would not deprive the children of all instruction.

There should be plenty of volunteers for the registration job without calling on the teachers. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent on a civilian defense organization in Chicago. The civilian defense administration might justify its cost if the OCD took over the rationing registration and let the teachers stick to the essential job for which they were hired, that of teaching the young.

Nation-wide liquor rationing is predicted by midsummer, and our barber thinks it will create an irresistible public demand for the return of prohibition. "People are bound to remember," he says, "that there wasn't any shortage trouble when the bootleggers ran the liquor business."—New York World-Telegram.

THE SHAKESPEARE MYSTERY.

The latest candidate for Shakespeare's laurels, nominated with the pomp and circumstance of zealous research, is a large coterie of Elizabethan dramatists presided over by a mastermind named Sir Edward Dyer. You can read about this conspiracy, if you are seeking means of taking your mind off the war, in a new book called "Will Shakspere and the Dyer's Hand," by Alden Brooks.

* * *

According to this theory Shakespeare, a practical man of the theater, became a broker for manuscripts in search of a producer, and Edward Dyer, poet and courtier, did the rewrite work, which was always needed. This was a job of good, clean Elizabethan theatrical business and the original authors, who were barely able to recognize their brain children when acted, never made much of a roar because Shakespeare claimed the byline.

* * *

Edward Dyer is a new character in Shakespearean iconoclasm, and comes into the controversy as a refreshing contrast to the other pretenders. From Bacon to De Vere they have been nobles of high title, but Dyer was a plain gentleman who earned a scrubby knighthood. Among the barons, viscounts, and earls who have been boomed for the highest honor in English literature, he is a veritable dark horse.

* * *

Let us glance at Dyer's qualifications. He was the son of a knight; he was educated at Oxford but did not take a degree; he spent some time abroad; he became an ornament of Queen Elizabeth's court. A writer of the period pairs him, among the courtiers, with Sir Philip Sidney, who willed him a library. He was sent on diplomatic missions to Holland and Denmark and was knighted in 1596. His contemporaries gave him a high reputation as a poet, but not much of his signed work has survived.

* * *

Dyer died in 1607, after which Shakespeare tapered off with "Coriolanus," "Timon of Athens," "Pericles," "Cymbeline," "A Winter's Tale," and "Henry VIII."

BARBERSHOP CHORD.

I watched them both; the lad of four years
As he perched in the barber's chair—
The mother who might have felt like tears
At the havoc, but he didn't care.

He talked to the barber, man to man,
And he eyed with evident joy
The glass where his streamlined poll began
To look more that of a boy.

Yes, this was adventure, shining, new,
Procedure not dreamed of till then:
A shine boy in swingtime slapping a shoe—
All that fuss with the faces of men.

But Time had caught me in its mesh,
And I felt rather old and battered;
I couldn't recapture a viewpoint so fresh
And young that a haircut mattered.

Evan S. Tonian.

Problem of the Last Button.

If you have aspirations for membership in the social register of the shabby-genteel, you will follow my example and go over your wardrobe of old clothes. For the time is nigh when clothing will be rationed, and old suits will be possessions to be cherished.

So I am brushing, and patching, and pressing, and restoring to something of their former grandeur these ancient remnants of gentility.

There is pleasure in the memories they revive. This one I bought on Bond street. I remember when it was being fitted; how the tailor adjusted the coat, smoothed the shoulders, and buttoned up the waistcoat with such dexterity and skill and in so superior a way I felt as tho I were being prepared for presentation at the Court of St. James's.

As I moved over to the mirror to see the devastating sight with my own eyes, I buttoned up the lowest waistcoat button, which he had left undone.

"You leave that one unbuttoned, sir," the tailor said.

"Why?" I asked imprudently.

"Because, sir, it's done."

"But it's undone," I protested.

He gave me a look which made it plain what he thought. I was a Philistine. I should have let it go at that, but in my ignorance went on:

"If you leave the last one unbuttoned, why put a button there at all?"

"Well, sir," he said, "if we didn't we'd have to leave the one above unbuttoned."

I have often wondered at that peculiar fashion and thought perhaps it was a whim of the duke of Windsor's who, as prince of Wales, made numerous curiosities of dress fashionable. But the other day, turning the pages of "Dombey and Son," I came upon the description of a reception at Dr. Blimber's academy, wherein it told how Toots, the head boy, resplendent in white waistcoat and cravat, "was involved in a good deal of uncertainty whether, on the whole, it was judicious to button the bottom button of his waistcoat."

It was a relief to find that Toots, too, had shared my uncertainty. And how much farther back than Toots does this quaint fashion penetrate?

Shandy Gaff.

WARTIME VALENTINE.

This lacy valentine I send,
Of cupids, hearts, and flowers,
With memories of other days
Of gay and carefree hours;
Of campus walks and long, long talks,
Of moon-rise on the blue

We float in your canoe. . . .
I know your task is hard and grim,
Your days are full of care,
And so I send this trifle gay
To bring a smile, out there.
Its loving messages are mine,
So, will you be my Valentine?

ETHER FOR BRONCHIAL SPASMS.

ATTACKS of bronchial asthma may be mild or severe. Seizures may follow one another in rapid succession, leaving the individual prostrated. The time to get ahead of this malady is when it is beginning. Like a vicious weed it can be stamped out easily if, on its appearance, the "starter" [seed] can be found and eliminated.

All too often the patient or the family will be satisfied with temporary amelioration, little realizing that the disorder may advance steadily and increase in severity. There may come a time when it will resist stubbornly all known forms of treatment.

It is then that it will be necessary to take careful inventory of the victim's constitution in an effort to locate weak spots that may be strengthened. Sometimes a latent infection will be found in the sinuses, within the bowel, or along the urinary tract. Bacteria growing in the bronchi may set up a vicious cycle. In fact, some of them behave much like the organism which causes whooping cough.

A violent paroxysm demands prompt care and we all realize the value of adrenalin and ephedrine. Recently, the attention of physicians has been called to the benefit which may be derived from the injection of ether, which is rendered less irritating by combining it with a bland oil, such as that obtained from peanuts. The success of this preparation in distressing cases of whooping cough led to its trial for asthma. While it cannot be looked upon as a cure, results thus far reported emphasize its influence in modifying a marked siege.

Subsequent to an injection, the patient may remark, "I can taste and smell ether." This condition may persist for 24 hours or even longer. A few will complain of dizziness, with cold extremities. But these sensations disappear quickly and, within two hours, breathing becomes easy, apprehension is allayed, and there is no longer present the intense spasm of the bronchial tubes. In addition, a large quantity of mucus may be expectorated.

It should be understood that this remedy is not routine. It may well be reserved for those emergencies in which the victim appears to be in real danger. Nevertheless, a report by Maletta describes reprieves which have persisted for several weeks or months.

When the patient is out of the woods for the time being, the question may be raised as to the desirability of changing environment. Numerous cases are recorded wherein a sufferer in a given locality, particularly if the climate is cold and damp, has improved greatly with residence in a warm, sunny region. A high humidity is apparently an important factor and a dry atmosphere may be the only habitat in which the afflicted one can exist in comfort.

Fortunately, a few of these potential asthmatics can be rendered immune by such simple procedures as changing the sleeping quarters from one side of the house to another, removing all carpets and drapes from the room. Another device includes the avoidance of some edibles to which the nervous system reacts.

SHE'S SENSITIVE.

L. H. writes: My young daughter suddenly gets attacks of sneezing and her nose becomes congested. The next day she is all right. Is this sinus or allergy?

REPLY.

Definitely allergy. Search for the irritant. It may be some item on the menu or an article of clothing.

YOUNG AT 40.

T. B. writes: My wife and I—both just past 40—have always been fond of hiking, skating, and swimming. Our friends tell us we are now too old for these exercises. Is this true?

REPLY.

No such thing. They will help keep you young.

HIS TEETH SHIVER.

L. writes: My teeth get chills when I take hot liquids. What causes this?

REPLY.

You have shocked the dental nerves. Avoid all such "jarring" procedures.

RATION REGISTRATION.

Chicago, Feb. 4.—Recently you published my statement that the pupils of the Chicago public elementary schools lost 9½ per cent of the school year from February, 1942, to February, 1943, and my plea that future losses be cut down by setting registration hours from 3 p. m. to 11 p. m., the teachers working the first four hour shift and the general citizenry, the second one.

The office of price administration should adopt some such plan, after considering that, since the opening of the war, juvenile delinquency has increased 50 per cent in England, 45 per cent in Canada, and about 10 per cent in Chicago; that each lost school day contributes to delinquency; that in New York City the breakdown of school discipline, which has resulted in the gun murder of one teacher, the serious shooting of another, and the committing of assault and battery upon scores of others, may be an indication that America will parallel the experiences of England and Canada; that from the standpoint of health and safety the children are much better off in school; that shortened college courses emphasize the mastering of fundamentals in the elementary schools; that the proposed plan would not injure the physical well-being of the teachers; and that the high school and college teachers in the public schools with all of the teachers in the private and parochial schools will insure enough volunteers for the second shift.

HARRY L. TATE, Principal,
Eli Whitney School.

"VILE BROADCAST."

Chicago, Feb. 3.—Lt. Comm. Winchell of the navy, also in charge of selling hand lotion to the ladies via radio, in a recent broadcast referred to the "damn fools" in Texas who returned Rep. Dies to congress.

Why not give a good Texan some time on the network to tell his opinion of Mr. Winchell? "Damn fool" is such a mild epithet. MRS. DALE.

Hinsdale, Ill., Feb. 3.—Winchell hit a new low Sunday night. Apparently he is immune to any restrictions as to the kind of language he may use over the radio. It must be he is in the Hopkins' circle, as their opinion of the American voter is so similar.

It would appear the only weapon honest American voters have today is to refuse to spend another penny for the product that sponsors this type of vile broadcast. VOTER.

Chicago, Feb. 4.—The "damn fools" are the people that listen to this toy sailor, Winchell.

WILLIAM N. SCHULTZ.

LIMIT ON PACIFIC GAINS.

Newton, Ia., Feb. 2.—You have been so nearly right all the time, in an exaggerated way, that I cannot refrain from noting your point of departure.

When you state that the United States should acquire additional territory in the Pacific by force of arms you lay a streak of sand in your structure.

It is hoped you will at least limit this idea to acquisition of merely defensive positions without any purpose of acquiring territory for development.

TIM J. CAMPBELL.

STUMBLING BLOCKS.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—Mr. Flynn's paving blocks proved to be stumbling blocks rather than steppingstones.

MRS. ETHEL BESSEY.

NOT OUR STARS, SAYS HE.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Australia, Dec. 12.—I trust you will give space in your paper to correct some misconceptions in your leading article, "Stars for Our Stripes." I write as a New Zealander, resident for 15 years in Australia, having also spent six months in the United States, and can, therefore, be considered qualified to write.

We do not wish, desire, or intend to become "states" of the United States. Our heritage is British, and we are damned proud of it. We do not speak "dialects." Our speech is king's English [except for a few radio announcers, politicians, and "ignoramii"]. The vast majority of us are not immigrants, but second, third, fourth, even fifth generation of Australian or New Zealander born. We are also about 98½ per cent British stock [and that includes Irish].

Your country likes to do a little bit of tail twisting of the old lion, and to fulminate against British imperialism. Does not your article savour of American imperialism? Editorials can do such a lot of damage among the unthinking portion of your reading public, do you think it assists the war effort to suggest that we may wish to desert old John Bull for Uncle Sam? We admire much in the United States and I have met many Americans who would have been good Australians, En Zeders, or Englishmen. We are duly grateful for the amount of help sent "down under" in this war from the United States, but we remember with pride that Britain, which also means the empire, was the only country to get into this war without having to be kicked into it.

I repeat that there is much to admire in Washington's, Franklin's, Lincoln's, and Roosevelt's America, and an Anglo-American union if feasible would be a guarantee of world peace. I say "if feasible" advisably, for while we do have much in common, there is much that would clash. Your judicial system, for example, and the gangsterdom and racketeering which flourishes under [or in spite of] it, would have to be overhauled.

I wish you the compliments of the Christmas season now upon us, and am ready to welcome you when the United States returns to the "fold" [of old England]. H. S. G. WOOLF.

A TIME FOR NOUNS.

Newcastle, Ind., Feb. 3.—Taking my historic typewriter onto my historic lap and inserting a sensational piece of colossal paper into its global carriage, may I suggest that we need a rationing of adjectives. This would eliminate the nonthinkers who use adjectives as substitutes for thought and would decrease our supply of boredom. This is a time for nouns—blood and sweat and tears and freedom. HENRY HAMMER.

LAME DUCKS' PARADE.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 3.—It seems that when the people turn thumbs down on a politician of the New Deal he is certain to be appointed to a high office in the government. The voters in Michigan knocked Sen. Prentiss M. Brown into the ashcan and he was forthwith retrieved for the office of price administrator to succeed Leon Henderson. Now comes the news that Brown in turn has appointed Raymond S. McKeough of Chicago regional price administrator for Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Iowa, and Illinois.

It is recalled that McKeough, former representative in congress, last fall was buried in the campaign against Sen. C. Wayland Brooks of Illinois. Brown for obscure reasons has exhumed him. Now we here in the northwest have the odoriferous machine politician of the ringsters nested in Chicago jammed down our throats and it makes every decent citizen gag. The case is further evidence of the arrogant contempt President Roosevelt seems to have for the people of the United States. P. J. SLETTERDAHL.

PHOTO CONTEST?

Flanagan, Ill., Feb. 3.—Recently in the back page picture feature of your paper you displayed pictures of WPA equipment going to rack and ruin.

Why not get up a picture contest among amateur kodakers giving prizes for pictures showing waste of vital war materials [rubber, scrap, etc.] in the wide territory served by The Tribune.

Or would that make the state and national burocracy so blankety blank mad they would issue an edict forbidding the sale of camera films at the corner drug store or anywhere else? J. H. DUIS.

THE HINK MISSES A WARD MEETING AFTER 46 YEARS

Faithful Followers Hail His Leadership.

Michael [Hinky Dink] Kenna missed his first Sunday afternoon preelection meeting of the 1st ward Democratic club yesterday in 46 years, and the precinct workers crowded into the chilly headquarters at 906 South State street spoke mournfully of his "empty chair."

It was occupied by 67 year old John Budinger, Democratic candidate to fill Kenna's seat in the city council, who expressed humble consciousness of his exalted position as a candidate for successor to The Hink.

"When our leader called me in and told me I had the privilege of being his candidate for alderman, it was the grandest thrill that ever happened to me," said Budinger when called upon by Chairman Joe Clark, Kenna's personal secretary for many years.

For Personal Liberty.

"I will carry on in the council as Ald. Kenna has all these years. I'm for better living conditions. I'm for better business conditions in the 1st ward. O, there are plenty of things I've in mind to do. I stand for personal liberty at all times."

Clark said Hinky Dink, at 86, is in good health, but decided to remain in his room at the Blackstone hotel yesterday rather than risk catching cold. The aging ruler of the 1st, termed by Clark "the richest ward in the world," was elected to the council in 1897, and his reign, in partnership with the late John [The Bath] Coughlin, became world fabled.

Chairman Clark instructed the 200 or more captains and workers from the ward's 30 precincts in the mechanics of the campaign and election —get in the pledge cards, vote it straight—then announced, "Gentlemen, we have other speakers amongst us!"

Champions of Liberty."

Chief Bailiff Albert J. Horan recalled the precepts of "those two champions of personal liberty—Alderman Kenna and the revered John Coughlin," then said he had no fear that Budinger would not be elected. "You have always enjoyed success here in the 1st," he said. "We are not afraid of cries of investigation, for we are as open as babes in their mother's arms."

State Sen. Lawrence E. Dowd called upon the members "to rise and stand as a token of respect for that great sterling leader—Michael Kenna." When this had been done, Sen. Dowd said: "I don't know of any more important message I can bring you than to get the colored votes in the south end. There are a lot of 'em, and don't forget, it means jobs."

Other speakers included Rep. Daniel M. Flanigan, Alderman James J. McDermott [14th], and Irwin B. Ciorfene, candidate for municipal court judge.

Chairman Clark sent the members home with the word that Ald. Kenna would be proud to know it had been the best meeting in many years.

Gene Krupa, world famous drummer and orchestra leader, now appearing at the COLLEGE INN, knows that his good head of hair is a real asset. As have so many leaders in every field he consults and takes treatment from John E. Warner & Associates in Warner offices throughout the country.

Thousands of men have saved and improved their hair through the Warner method of treatment, but no case is ever accepted unless beneficial results are reasonably certain. There is never any charge for a private examination—and in every case honest advice is given as to whether or not treatment can be helpful.

Fees for treatment are very moderate and are payable as the treatments are taken—not in advance. There is a separate department for women.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

J. C. V. writes: "I am a young business man of 30, the father of two children, 4 and 6. I am in the cemetery memorial [tombstones] business. This business requires a large stock on hand. Orders are taken almost every day and it takes from six to eight weeks to fill them. This new ruling by Mr. McNutt, "work for defense or be drafted," sort of puzzles me. I am at the top of my draft board list and expect reclassification but would I be actually drafted or deferred?"

ANSWER: Your occupation does not appear on the "essential" list nor on the defense list so it appears you may be drafted. Married men with children have been drafted for quite some time, even tho they were working in a skilled capacity in a war plant.

E. B. writes: "My wife and I adopted an infant who did not know we were not his parents until he was past 21 years of age. He is now in training in Camp Roberts, Cal., and was refused the usual insurance because he had no blood relations. I think he should have equal rights."

ANSWER: Unfortunately he was given incorrect information. Foster parents can be named beneficiaries of his insurance. Men going into service ought to send for our article, "Insurance for Yanks." Send us a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

R. A. writes: "I write to you on behalf of some 12 boys all of whom are seniors in our local high school. We have been trying in every way to get some definite information on various programs open to seniors but have not had any luck. Where can we get this information?"

ANSWER: We announced the availability of an article on "Cadet Programs" last week. The article surveys the whole field of opportunities open at present. We will send it to any one writing in and sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope. It might be remarked that the air corps intends to open aviation cadet enlistments again in the next few days to young men 18 to 26 years of age inclusive.

D. S. E. writes: "I entered the army via the draft and have now completed my basic training. I am a graduate engineer with nine years experience in my field but I couldn't get a commission because of my vision. I've asked every officer around the camp how to get out of here and into my own work but they sa, they don't know. Guess what I'm doing now—I'm the bugler."

ANSWER: With the army constantly calling for persons with your experience and training, it would appear to be a good idea if they conducted a survey of their own camps. Ask your adjutant or commanding officer to send a memo to the Chief of Engineers, Washington, D. C., and see if you can't be transferred, or they might also recommend you for officer candidate school of the engineering corps.

JOHNS-MANVILLE AT WAR

A report to the public for the year 1942

★

THE WORLD now knows the job that was done in 1942 by American industry in producing the weapons with which we are fighting to Victory.

One of the greatest miscalculations of the Axis leaders was their estimate of the productive potential of that dynamic force we call American Business. They did not understand how readily the skills and abilities of workers and management, developed under freedom and democracy, could be converted to making weapons of war.

How American Business operates—how it has grown to be our great bulwark of strength through the fair reward for work and initiative, and the constant investment of new capital in new ideas and new machinery—is best reflected in the annual reports of the thousands of companies which comprise it.

For this reason, Johns-Manville—as a typical American company—is reporting this year not only to its stockholders and employees but also to the public, the highlights of our first full year of wartime operations:

★

Total Income	$108½ million	100%
Used for all costs of doing business (except those shown below), including depreciation, depletion and reserves for war contingencies	$ 49½ million	46%
To employees for salaries and wages	$ 37 million	34%
To government for taxes	$ 16½ million	15%
To stockholders in dividends	$ 2 million	2%
Leaving in the business	$ 3½ million	3%

★

★ In 1942 Johns-Manville produced the largest volume in its 85-year history. Measured in sales, production was 75% greater than in 1940, and 16% greater than a year ago.

★ Wages and salaries were 23% greater than in 1941. Employees numbered 15,200—slightly less than the year before.

★ Taxes were equivalent to $19.65 per share of the common stock or over $1,098 per employee.

★ Earnings after taxes were 5¢ per dollar of total income, compared to 6¢ last year.

★ Dividends of $7.00 per share were paid on the preferred stock, and $2.25 per share on the common stock.

★ The first shell and bomb-loading plant to receive the Army-Navy "E" Award was built and is being operated under Johns-Manville management.

★ Over 2700 J-M men are in the armed forces of the United Nations.

★ More than a thousand products manufactured by Johns-Manville are now serving our armed forces and our war industries.

Johns-Manville is now at peak operations with all of our energies focused upon record war production until final Victory. When the war is won, we pledge to the public that again we will produce more and better things for the kind of better living for which our country is fighting.

EXPECT SEARCY TO HEAD INQUIRY ON OIL RATIONING

Legislators Ready to Act on Parole Reform.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 7.—Opening of the joint legislative commission's probe of fuel oil rationing and the start of hearings on the Rennick-Connors measure to reform parole procedure are on the statehouse calendar for Tuesday.

Members of the joint commission will meet at the capitol to organize and select a chairman and secretary. They plan to conduct a rapid fire inquiry into fuel oil rationing in three sections of the state with the prospect of a report embodying legislative recommendations by March 1.

Sen. Earle Benjamin Searcy [R., Springfield], who introduced the resolution which set up the commission, is expected to be named chairman. The commission has authority to summon witnesses, including officials of the office of price administration who are residents of the state. Hearings probably will be held in Chicago, Springfield, and a southern Illinois city yet to be selected.

The parole measure will come before the senate judiciary committee Tuesday afternoon. Introduced in the upper house by Sen. William J. Connors [D., Chicago], the bill provides that the court must fix minimum and maximum limits of imprisonment in all cases of indeterminate sentences.

Parole reform advocates who have carried on their fight thru several sessions of the legislature feel certain that the Rennick-Connors measure meets any constitutional and executive objections which have been raised in the past. A similar bill was introduced in the house by Rep. Frederick Rennick [R., Buda].

Any person sentenced under the proposed law would not be eligible for parole until the court's minimum sentence has been served, and, conversely, could not be retained in prison after serving the court's maximum term. Trial judges would be empowered to impose a minimum greater, but not less, than the minimum fixed by law, as well as a maximum less, but not greater, than the maximum specified by statute.

FATHER, FORMER POLICEMAN, HELD ON GIRL'S CHARGE

Elvis Rudd, 55 years old, 2742 Washington boulevard, who police said was discharged from the police department in 1933 for drunkenness, was being held at the Warren avenue station yesterday pending investigation of a story of mistreatment related by his daughter, Verna Mae, 17.

Rudd was arrested when his daughter appeared at the station, a tooth knocked out and in tears, and told police that her father had beaten her and forced her to submit to mistreatment. Rudd refused to make a statement and was placed in a cell.

Miss Rudd was taken to the Juvenile home.

CHAPTER 17.

NEW EVIDENCE.

Miss Silver said nothing. Her lips remained pressed together.

Randal March said in good humored exasperation, "O, I knew you wouldn't like it—but there it is. I've got to see Laura Fane and I'd like you to be here, if she doesn't object."

They sat in silence after he had rung the bell. A maid came—a dark-eyed girl with a sidelong look, Florrie Mumford, the under-housemaid, the girl Agnes didn't care much about. She was sent to ask Miss Laura Fane if she would come to the study, and presently Laura came.

March said, "Come in." And then, "I want to ask you some questions, Miss Fane, and if you have no objection, I should like Miss Silver to be here. You are not obliged to answer me, and you are not obliged to have Miss Silver here—you can do just as you please about that."

Laura stood just inside the door, which she had shut behind her. She looked very white, and there were smudges under her eyes.

She said in a young defenseless way, "O, I should like her to stay. And I'll tell you—anything I can."

He pulled up a chair for her, and she came around the table and sat there with her hands in her lap. He took up one of the papers which lay before him and said:

"Miss Fane, did you leave your room at any time during the night on which the murder took place?"

She lifted her beautiful candid eyes to his and said:

"Yes."

"Will you tell me why?"

"Yes. I woke up and remembered that I hadn't brought my Chinese shawl upstairs. I went down to get it."

"In the middle of the night?"

"I know—it sounds silly. But I couldn't get to sleep again. I kept wondering where I had left it, and then I remembered, so I went down."

"And where had you left it?" said Randal March.

"Hanging on the newel post at the foot of the stairs."

He came in very quick with "Right, or left?" But there was no hesitation in her reply.

"The right hand side going down."

He glanced at the statement in his hand.

"And you went down, and fetched it, and came back again?"

She shook her head.

"No, I didn't fetch it. It wasn't there."

In a way he was relieved. There had been a moment when he thought she was going to lie, looking him straight in the face with those wide, truthful eyes. Because Lucy Adams had said that Laura Fane came back to her room at 3 o'clock in the morning, and that she came empty handed.

He said gravely, "The shawl wasn't there, but you went on looking for it——"

"Yes—in the hall, and in the drawing room."

"Not in Miss Lyle's sitting room?"

All her color went, but the eyes did not waver. She thought, "If I had, I should have found that open door—and Tanis dead——"

He saw a shudder go over her.

She said, "No, I didn't go in there—I was thinking—how dreadful if I had—because I suppose—I should have found her——"

"How do you know that you would have found her then? What time was it?" he asked quickly.

She wasn't frightened. She was puzzled.

"The clock struck as I was going upstairs. I think it struck 3."

"Then how do you know that the murder had taken place? How do you know that Miss Lyle was already dead?"

"I suppose I don't. I didn't think about that, but—well, I suppose we all thought—it must have been—earlier than that——" Her voice trailed away, like a voice that is being faded out.

When it was quite gone March said, "I see. You are sure you didn't go into Miss Lyle's sitting room?"

"Yes, I'm quite sure."

"You didn't open the door from the hall?"

"O, no."

"Or the door between the drawing room and the octagon room? You were in the drawing room, weren't you?"

"Yes, I was in the drawing room. But I didn't open the door."

Why didn't you?"

"The question leapt at her, but she only looked puzzled.

"Why should I? I was looking for my shawl. I thought I had left it in the hall, but it might have got back in the drawing room. I never thought of looking anywhere else."

He leaned back in his chair.

"You say you thought you left this shawl hanging on the newel post. Actually, where did you leave it? Where was it found?"

Laura leaned forward. She said, "I did leave it on the newel post—I'm sure I did. And it hasn't been found at all."

* *

When they were alone again March turned in his chair with an abrupt, "Well?"

During the whole of the time that Laura had been in the room Miss Silver's lips had not uttered a single word. She unclosed them now.

"What do you expect me to say, my dear Randal?"

He smiled.

"What you think. You always do."

She gave her little cough.

"I hope so. But in this case I would rather hear what you think yourself."

The smile became a thoughtful one.

"A disarming creature. One would say candor itself—or one would have said so if one hadn't taken up this horrid trade. Do you remember Milly Morrison?"

"My dear Randal, any woman would have seen Milly at a glance."

"Gentlemen are quite unable to believe any harm of a young woman who has large blue eyes. If Laura Fane's eyes were blue, you would not be suspecting her now."

He laughed.

"O, she's got lovely eyes—I grant you that. Easy to look at, and you know that. But here we are with a set of awkward facts on our hands. Desborough and his quarrel with Tanis Lyle—a quarrel which drove him into something uncommonly like a threat to murder her. His admission that he saw her go downstairs just before 2 o'clock on the night of the murder. We don't really know what their relations may have been. We do know that he was breaking with her to marry Laura Fane. Just now when you asked me if I could think of any reason why she should have opened the door to the church, I said I couldn't. It was stupid of me, because there's a perfectly obvious reason. He was threatening her with a pistol, and she had lost her head and was trying to make a bolt for it."

Miss Silver shook her head.

"If you had seen Tanis Lyle when she was really being threatened with a pistol you would not entertain that idea for an instant. It is quite absurd. She would have faced him without a tremor."

He said, "You can't tell—people lose their nerve suddenly—I've seen it happen. But that's just speculation. This——" he took out an envelope from a drawer and handed it to her —"is evidence."

She opened the envelope and took out a folded piece of paper. It contained a couple of black silk threads about 8 inches long. They appeared to be much discolored. She looked at them gravely and intently. Then, without speaking, she raised her eyes to the superintendent's face.

He said, "Those threads were found clutched between the fingers of Tanis Lyle's left hand. The stain is blood. Do they suggest anything to you?"

'26' GIRL MURDER SUSPECT SEIZED; CAPONE MOBSTER

Reported Seen Near Flat Day of Slaying.

Capt. William Drury of the Town Hall police last night announced the arrest of a well known police character and member of the Capone syndicate who was identified as having been seen in the courtyard of the apartment building last Tuesday shortly before the discovery of the murder of Estelle Carey, former "26" dice girl. Miss Carey, who was beaten and burned to death, lived at 512 Addison street.

The suspect, Thomas Stapleton, 36 years old, was seized in his rooms at the Commonwealth hotel by Drury and Detective Herman Rosenthal early yesterday morning after his picture had been identified by a woman resident of the building in which the murder occurred. Stapleton told Drury he had no gangster connections and was employed as a clerk in a near northside drug store, earning $20 per week.

Associate of Mangano.

Stapleton's apartment and wardrobe could hardly be met with a drug clerk's salary according to Capt. Drury, who said his prisoner was an associate of Lawrence [Dago] Mangano and had recently been arrested with him.

Stapleton, who is 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs more than 200 pounds, was shown to the woman witness at a special showup in Town Hall station yesterday afternoon. The woman unhesitatingly made the identification. She told Capt. Drury he was the man she saw walking into the courtyard leading to the entrance of the slain woman's apartment. She said she also observed him as he left a short time later.

Knew Victim, Drury Says.

Stapleton no doubt knew Miss Carey, and could have been admitted to her apartment, Capt. Drury said. Stapleton was a familiar figure around the Colony club where she had worked as a dice girl for Nick Circella, alias Nick Dean, who is serving an eight year term in federal prison for conspiracy to extort more than a million dollars from movie executives.

Stapleton's police record shows a large number of arrests but no convictions.

WOMEN'S EQUAL RIGHTS PROPOSAL OPPOSED BY AFL

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—The AFL announced its opposition today to the proposed constitutional amendment to give women equal rights with men. The bill is pending in congress.

A statement by William Green, president, said the amendment "would place in jeopardy all laws protecting women in industry."

"The American Federation of Labor sympathizes with and supports the efforts of women's organizations to remove from the statute books various laws discriminating against women as to property, guardianship, naturalization, and other rights guaranteed to men," Green added. "We advocate specific measures to wipe out such discriminations.

"But a constitutional amendment must, of necessity, be drawn in general terms allowing no reservations. Therefore, if it is adopted, the validity of existing laws limiting the hours of work for women and otherwise protecting women in industry would be subject to judicial assault."

PRESIDENT HAILS BOY SCOUTS WITH BRISK 'CARRY ON'

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—President Franklin D. Roosevelt urged today that the Boy Scout movement be "maintained at its full effectiveness as a practical contribution to national strength."

In a message in connection with the Boy Scouts' 33d anniversary tomorrow, made public by Dr. Elbert K. Fretwell, chief Scout executive, the President said:

"Fellow Scouts and Scouters:

"Today, with the nation at war, we observe the 33d birthday of the Boy Scouts of America. The job of winning the war and assuring a decent and lasting peace is the concern of every American.

"I heartily approve the slogan adopted for the Boy Scouts for 1943—to 'toughen up, buckle down, carry on to victory.' I am informed that to date more than 327 of those who have been decorated for heroism by our country have been identified as having had Scout training.

The leaders of our armed forces in training camps and on the battle-fronts have emphasized the value of Scout training in developing knowledge and skill, as well as courage, self-reliance, resourcefulness and initiative, which are proving to be so essential in our determination to win the war."

SCHOOLS READY, AWAIT ORDERS ON WAR CLASSES

Chicago area universities and colleges approved for specialized military training have completed surveys of facilities and are awaiting definite word as to the time and the number of service men to be trained in each institution.

President Henry T. Heald of the Illinois Institute of Technology, who is also adviser to the navy in its college training program, said it was his understanding that the army would begin college training in March and have the program in full swing by July, while the navy would not get under way until June or July. Illinois Tech has been approved for all branches of engineering.

Northwestern university and the University of Illinois, also approved for engineer training, have sent data to army and navy officials on the number of students they can house and feed.

FAST ACTION HELPS PREVENT MANY COLDS

From Developing...

At the first sign of a cold, put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. Its quick action aids Nature's defenses against colds... And remember—when a head cold makes you suffer, or transient congestion "fills up" nose, 3-purpose Va-tro-nol does 3 important things: (1) shrinks swollen membranes, (2) relieves irritation, (3) helps clear cold-clogged nasal passages. And brings relief! Follow directions in folder.

Attend Party Given by A. W. V. S. to Raise Money for Lounge for Women in the Services

A party given by the A. W. V. S. recently to raise money to furnish the lounge for WAACs, WAVES, SPARs, and army and navy nurses in the Bismarck hotel was a huge success, judging from these expressions caught by the candid camera man. Tea-dancing at the far left are Ensign Marjorie Lytle, a WAVE, and Lt. Ronald M. Kent. Next are Lt. Marvin L. Smith of the army, and Mrs. Smith Christopher, chairman of the lounge committee for the American Women's Voluntary Services. The third picture, from left, shows Third Officer Alice Bradley Davey of the WAACs, and at the far right are Lt. William Smith of the army, and Second Officer Roma Ann Scott, of the WAACs, enjoying a dance.

Women in War Work

By Kate Massee

The Women's Auxiliary Training corps—the feminine counterpart of the R. O. T. C.—will swing into action today at the University of Illinois. Seventy-five sophomore and junior students have enrolled for the two year military training course. This semester it will consist of five hours weekly, including three hours of theory and two of drill to make up for lost time. Next year the WATC will train three hours weekly.

The WATC will bear a relationship to the Women's Army Auxiliary corps [WAAC] similar to that of the R. O. T. C. to the army. Many of the young women who have signed for training have indicated that they expect to join the WAAC, WAVES, or other women's military units when they've completed school, according to Maria Leonard, dean of university women. The unit is sponsored by the university military department and the office of the dean of women. Altho the WAAC has not announced credit for training in the WATC, observers expect that this will be extended when actual results are shown.

Members of the WATC have already selected a uniform that is both attractive and inexpensive, Dean Leonard said. Costing about $6, it consists of a six gored skirt of heavy khaki colored gabardine, a tan shirt, khaki colored hat, and tie. The hat follows the pattern of the overseas cap and bears the WATC insignia in orange and blue, the university's colors.

The course will follow closely that given members of the WAAC at Fort Des Moines, Ia. Basic training will include military customs and courtesy, care of clothing and equipment, defense against air and chemical attacks, organization and administration of the army, map reading, safeguarding military information, the articles of war, and current history.

The co-eds will become eligible for medals similar to those awarded semi-annually by THE TRIBUNE to hundreds of cadets in R. O. T. C. units in universities, colleges, normal schools, military academies, and high schools. At the close of this semester, THE TRIBUNE will present gold, silver, and bronze medals to outstanding co-eds in the WATC.

University credit toward graduation will be given, as is now given for R. O. T. C. instruction. Col. Leonard C. Sparks is the R. O. T. C. commandant at the university, and Maj. Ellis Danner, a member of the university's military department, is working closely with the new unit. A women's military organization was formed last fall at Indiana university, and its three outstanding co-eds will also be decorated twice yearly by THE TRIBUNE.

Among the young women from the metropolitan Chicago area who have enrolled for two years of training in the WATC are June Boe, Rochelle Busch, Martha Chval, Shirley Cross, Marie Esrom, Eleanor Fleming, Bernice Green, Etta Kallstrom, Millicent Sloboda, Alice Wilhelm, Carol Strub, Virginia Russell, Margaret Friedrich, Flord Locke, Vlasta Martinec, Isabel Marvin, Deborah Moore, Elaine Curtis, and Vivian Silerberg.

The WAVES will hold the second of their "open house" receptions between 7 and 9 o'clock tonight in room 1175, Board of Trade building. Skeets Gallagher and Buddy Ebsen, stars of "Good Night Ladies," will entertain prior to the induction of a new group of WAVES. The WAVES enrollment office will be open each Monday and Friday evening for the benefit of women who can't come in for information during the day.

Business Women Will Hear Talk on Wartime Farming

The Alliance of Business and Professional Women of Chicago, meeting at 6 o'clock this evening in the Chicago Bar association's rooms, 29 South La Salle street, will have Mrs. Nona S. Ogren, state field worker with the United States department of agriculture, as guest speaker. Mrs. Ogren will talk on "Agriculture and the War," illustrating her lecture with motion pictures. The alliance is headed by Miss Mary H. Burris.

Lt. Howard Shaw McCutcheon and Miss Nancy Wells Engaged

BY JUDITH CASS.

DR. AND MRS. ELLSWORTH FARIS of Lake Forest today are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Miss Nancy Wells, to Lt. Howard Shaw McCutcheon, middle son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. McCutcheon of Chicago. The announcement follows closely the engagement and marriage of the McCutcheons' eldest son, Lt. [j. g.] McCutcheon Jr., to Miss Suzanne Dart of New Orleans. They were married on Feb. 1 after a short engagement.

Miss Wells and Lt. Shaw McCutcheon are not planning to be married until after the war, however, for she wishes to take her degree from Wheaton college in Norton, Mass., where she is a junior. Lt. McCutcheon left his studies at Harvard university to enter the school of meteorology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and now is stationed at the army air forces bombardier school at El Paso, Tex. He obtained leave to go to New Orleans to be best man at the McCutcheon-Dart wedding, which also was attended by the McCutcheons' youngest son, Barr, a student at Milton academy.

John T. McCutcheons Seek Permission to Visit Island.

Mr. and Mrs. McCutcheon still are in the south. They are trying to obtain passports to visit their Treasure Island, near Nassau, where they have spent part of every winter since their marriage. So far they have been unsuccessful. Failing permission to visit the island, they will go to Florida.

Miss Wells has two brothers, G. Greeley Wells, whose wife is the former Barbara Blossom, and Thomas E. Wells Jr., whose wife is the former Carolyn Chapman. Their father was the late Thomas E. Wells.

Army and navy wives whose husbands' orders permit them to follow the head of the house from post to post consider themselves fortunate. Mrs. Theodore Tieken has been especially favored, for she was with her navy husband at Chapel Hill, N. C., where he was first sent upon being commissioned a lieutenant, junior grade. Now as a senior grade lieutenant Mr. Tieken has been sent to Del Monte, Cal. He leaves today after a short visit with his wife's parents, the Henry Babsons of Lake Shore drive, and Mrs. Tieken and their little girl will follow him west shortly.

Owen Dixon, minister for the commonwealth of Australia at Washington, who will pay a 48 hour visit to Chicago this week, will be entertained at a reception on Saturday at the Casino club by the English Speaking union. Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine is chairman of the reception, which is being limited to members of the union and their immediate families.

Patients at the Passavant hospital who are tended by the Stark twins, Miss Mary and Miss Rosalind, probably are filled with admiration for the hours put in by a certain pretty nurse's aid. The twins look so much alike that, altho they alternate days at the hospital, the patients they work with could not be blamed for supposing them one person. One or the other will be assisting at a benefit tea and card party to be given by the Women's Guild and Auxiliary of St. Chrysostom's church on Wednesday, Feb. 24, at the parish house. Their father, the Rev. Dudley Stark, is rector of the church, and Mrs. Stark is chairman of the tea committee.

Edwin Embree to Address Junior League Meeting.

The Chicago Junior league's winter meeting is being held at 11 o'clock this morning in the Polo room of the Ambassador East. The guest speaker will be Edwin R. Embree, president of the Julius Rosenwald Fund, whose subject is to be "Racial Color in the New World Order."

Guests may be invited to hear Mr. Embree and to stay for luncheon afterward. Some of those who have made reservations for luncheon are the league's president, Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams III., Mrs. Daniel Leonard, Mrs. Paul Guenzel, Mrs. Paul Oliver, Mrs. Richard K. Juergens, Mrs. Jacob Bischof, Mrs. John T. Beatty Jr., Mrs. William F. Ogden, and Mrs. Tilden Cummings.

Party going has little attraction on this visit to Chicago for the league's former president, Mrs. Gordon Loud, who is here from Washington, D. C. She and her husband and parents, the John H. Merrells, are completely wrapped up in the charms of the Louds' new daughter, Annabelle. Brought home from the Cradle on Saturday to her grandparents' Lake Shore drive apartment, Annabelle will be going back to Georgetown with her parents as soon as they can get train reservations. The baby was named for Mr. Loud's mother, the late Mrs. Edward Loud.

The Phantom Ball committee of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society will meet at 2:30 o'clock today in the directors' room of the Palmolive building. Mrs. Jacob Baur is chairman, with Mrs. Chauncey McCormick and Mrs. Thomas J. Fleming as co-chairmen. Mr. McCormick, chairman of the men's board, will speak at 4 o'clock, and tea will be served.

Kenwood Social Service Club to Collect Rummage.

Members of the Kenwood Social Service club of the Infant Welfare society will bring all the rummage they can collect to a tea today at the home of Mrs. Arthur Jackson. The goods will be taken to the club's Thrift shop, 1451 East 55th street, which is open on Tuesdays and Fridays. Mrs. Kenath T. Sponsel is in charge of collecting articles to be donated to the shop, and will arrange to have the rummage collected.

The speakers' table at the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations today at the Palmer House will be more or less a family affair, for a number of the MacLeish clan will be seated there to hear Archibald MacLeish, librarian of congress, speak on "Political Warfare." His mother, Mrs. Andrew MacLeish, sent regrets from Arizona, where she is spending the winter, but the Bruce MacLeishes, and Norman MacLeish will be there. Also present, but at a table nearby, will be the speaker's daughter, Miss Mary Hibbard MacLeish, who is a student at the National College of Education.

The council's president, Frederic Woodward, will preside. Mrs. Woodward, the Walter T. Fishers, and the Walter Lichtensteins will be others at the speakers' table.

Mr. and Mrs. Milford H. Schulhof of Greenleaf avenue and the Max L. Oberndorfs of Lake Shore drive were in Savannah, Ga., for the marriage on Saturday of Miss Dorothy Jane Schulhof to Lt. Paul Oberndorf. Lt. Oberndorf and his bride will live near his post, Camp Stewart, Ga.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

Dear Boss.

You scold but mildly when I'm late,
[My explanations always rate!]
No "overtime" when I've a slick date . . .
Or hesitation when you dictate.

I've never heard you raise your voice.
Your smile can make my heart rejoice.
You give out freely with your praises
And [more important] with those raises.

You're my ideal—no reservations—
—Emily.

No Breakfast.

A study extending over a period of years at the Western Electric company shows that women employés require a longer rest period in the middle of the morning than they do in midafternoon when you might suppose they normally would be more tired. The explanation is: No breakfast. The girls, it has been observed, must have time for a pickup before they can finish the morning's work because they begin the day without breakfast.

Altho beauty columns and health columns repeatedly have emphasized the fact that the morning meal is essential to health and efficiency, the habit still persists. And, mothers of girls who work, as well as employers of young women, write earnest protests on the "no breakfast" practice. "What," asked an employer in a letter, "would be the output of an office full of men who come to work on empty stomachs? Can't you get the idea across to the girls?"

Perhaps the study at the Western Electric will be more effective than arguments, for there it stands for the record: No breakfast means lowered vitality and fatigue in the morning.

The Existing Order.

From E. D. "I think the answer to the new girl problem when she goes into an office where there is a slip-shod routine is 'Don't try to change the existing order of things! It never pays. It never gets you any friends; never clinches your job for you. If it is too unsatisfactory, get another job, but don't ever try to make over an office [or a man!].'"

A Man's Castle.

A taxi-driver in whose cab a number of business girls ride—jitney fashion—to their offices now has put a service star in his cab. It's for his son, he explained to Marge . . . the lad's overseas . . . and somehow with the boy's mother dead and he, his dad, driving a taxi all day, he wanted the service star in his cab. "You know," he said, "a man's cab is almost like his home . . . and well . . . it seemed right to put it there."

The Renaissance.

Club members and guests of The Renaissance will meet at the Art Institute at 2 o'clock today for their "painting day" program. An illustrated lecture on "Nature's Western Playground" will be given by Ted Phillips.

'Student Prince' Returns in Best Recent Version

"THE STUDENT PRINCE."

Operetta in a prolog and four acts. Music by Sigmund Romberg. Book and lyrics by Dorothy Donnelly. Settings by Watson Barratt. Presented by the Messrs. Shubert in the Selwyn theater, Sunday evening, Feb. 7, 1943.

THE CAST.

Prince Karl Franz.....Frank Hornaday
Dr. Engel.....Everett Marshall
Prime Minister von Mark..Victor Morley
Ruder.....Walter Johnson
Gretchen.....Ann Pennington
Kathie.....Barbara Scully
Lutz.....Detmar Poppen
Hubert.....Harry K. Morton
Grand Duchess Anastasia....Nina Varela
Princess Margaret.....Lorraine Bridges
Capt. Tarnitz.....Joseph Toner
Countess Leydon.....Zella Russell
And many others.

BY CECIL SMITH.

While nobody in his right mind would call it prodigal of anything except vocal volume, this is the best revival of "The Student Prince" we have seen in some years. Some, tho by no means all, of the costumes seem to have been new at the beginning of the 1942-'43 road season. The male choristers sing with snap and precision and perform their historic gyrations with unanimity of mind and body, which is more than could be said of last year's group. And the important singing is at least in the hands of people whom nature originally endowed with voices of some quality.

The biggest improvement over recent performances of the operetta is Frank Hornaday's Prince Karl Franz. the gushy naïveté of the royal youngster getting his first glimpse of Heidelberg, its beer-swilling students, and little Kathie, is hard to present with any reasonableness in this hardened year of 1943. Mr. Hornaday manages to be natural without becoming kittenish, and that is a commendable accomplishment. He also frequently sings well, even if he has not wholly conquered his habitual impulse simply to open his lungs and roar.

The main object of most of the solo singing last night, anyway, seemed to be to knock the audience dead. Everett Marshall, singing Dr. Engel for the first time here, thoroly concurred in this monotonous aim. There can be no doubt that Mr. Marshall possesses a superior baritone voice of smooth texture and robust vigor, but he certainly underestimates the value of an occasional pianissimo. The Selwyn is a small house, in which it is all too easy for a baritone to sound leonine, but it has the potential advantage that all the niceties of art with which Mr. Marshall has no concern would register particularly delightfully within its limited confines.

Histronically Mr. Marshall's Dr. Engel is cut off the same bolt of cheese cloth as his Schubert in "Blossom Time." A fixed professional smile, a misty expression in the eyes, and an arch affectation in the delivery of spoken lines are its principal distinguishing features. No one with respect for the exactness of langauge would call what he does acting.

Barbara Scully is a pretty Kathie, more routined in the ways of the stage than when she was here before. Ann Pennington appears as Gretchen, the flirtatious barmaid; somehow her capers only appear unseemly. The other major participants uphold the standard of low comedy which seems to be the Shubert ideal of humor in all their revivals. Harry K. Morton, who spits incessantly in "Blossom Time," spat only once last night.

For all the obstacles the Shubert type of production puts in its way, "The Student Prince" is a first rate, vital operetta. If it is ever presented with taste and discrimination, it will probably amaze the world all over again. Even in a fairly good hack performance like the present one it is full of rewards, and the audience, as usual, took it to its collective heart.

Front VIEWS and PROFILES By MARCIA WINN

Casablanca Influence?

A Milwaukee manufacturer telephoned a New York company from which he purchases hundreds of thousands of dollars of raw materials each year. He was ready to discuss commitments for the rest of 1943. Should he go to New York or would the supplier come to Milwaukee?

"I tell you what to do," the New Yorker replied. "Get your purchasing agent, engineers, and yourself together. I'll come out with my men and meet you at Missoula, Mont. We can discuss everything there."

Memento of the Past.

It's a very curious war. Lt. Robert B. Downes, gunnery officer on board an aircraft escort tender in the Pacific, wrote Fred Asher here of the pilot who knocked off a Jap and brought back his body as evidence. Fastened to the Jap's uniform was a small gold football engraved: "Pineapple Bowl, Jan. 1, 1940. Oregon—39. Hawaii—6." [Oregon State had no Japanese on its team that year, so presumably he played for Hawaii.]

Fortune's Child.

Our recent account of a baby named Penny Rich prompted a Watertown, Wis., mother to write us of her child, Penny Fortune. "And besides," the mother added, "she is a Miss Fortune."

Identity.

A naval officer here, who complained that people mistook his blue winter cap for that of a streetcar conductor, was inordinately happy when he was promoted to the rank of commander and was entitled to wear the distinctive gold oak leaves, or "scrambled eggs," of his new rank on his cap visor.

"I'll bet they won't mistake me for a policeman now," he remarked to a companion as they waited on a corner for a bus.

Just then a youth with a violin case under his arm approached. "What band are you with, mister?" he asked.

Delayed Reaction.

Chicagoan Kenneth Horan's book, "Remember the Day," is going to be made into a movie. This fact, a very comforting one to Miss Horan, who thought she was the only one who even remembered her book, which was published six years ago, came about when a producer, browsing thru a second hand book shop, found a copy marked "Thirty cents." He opened it, began to read, and was charmed. Later he recalled that Miss Horan's agent had sent it to him when it first was published, but he had ignored it. Result: Contracts signed, casting begun, Miss Horan off to Hollywood to work on script. Cinderella again. . . .

Visitors of the Week.

An elderly couple walked unannounced into the Chicago Service Men's center at the Auditorium last week. "We'd like to look around," the woman said. "Our boys wrote us all about the fun at the centers when they were stationed at Great Lakes." When the couple was introduced in the canteen, a hush swept over the room and every man rose to his feet. They were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sullivan of Waterloo, Ia., whose five sons went down on the Juneau.

Chivalry Changes.

Loretta Stocker, a secretary at the Chicago Service Men's center, slipped on the ice and fell the other morning as she was rushing for a bus. Behind her was a gentleman, also rushing. "I'll hold the bus for you," he called as he raced past her prostrate form. "Get up quick."

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Theodore Roosevelt once told a graduating class that everybody should read "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." Were he alive, his remarks about this picture adaptation undoubtedly and picturesquely would burn the botch to a crisp.

Near sacrilege, I call it, to inject into the veins of a homely, inspiring and beloved story coarsely risque dialog and tiresome horseplay. This has been done to the late Alice Hegan Rice's "Mrs. Wiggs."

The heroine, as you probably know, was that rare thing, a contented woman. With her brood of often hungry children she lived in a ramshackle shanty, one of a group of like dwellings that straddled the railroad tracks and was called "The Cabbage Patch." . . . There was a Mr. Wiggs but he'd gone off to the Klondike in search of gold, leaving his Elvira to manage as best she could. . . . And, in the midst of grinding poverty she DOES manage.

Every little break is greeted with ecstasy. . . . Every sorrow met with unflinching courage. . . . Mrs. Wiggs' days are spent in mothering and neighboring. . . . Other occupants of the patch turn to her like flowers to the sun. Especially Miss Hazy who wants a man! . . . Most of the film version's vulgar episodes are concerned with this frustrated femme's pursuit and capture of one.

You particularly resent the manhandling of Mrs. Rice's story because of the fine actress and adorable children so ruthlessly wasted. [Being themselves, they couldn't help causing the action to sing now and then.]

Back in 1934 Paramount made another version of "Mrs. Wiggs——" with Pauline Lord. They ought to go and visit it some time.

See you tomorrow.

Thru the Looking Glass

Here comes cupid again! Valentine's day isn't so far off, and those of you who expect the postman to carry your greetings might start your shopping now.

One little notion, and a particularly good one for the service men, perhaps, who want to mail more than a letter to their loves for this day, are the "love letter sachets" which are to be found in the shops all ready to mail. They're envelopes in the colors you might expect, pink or blue, all ready to mail to the dream girl and each is a truly beautiful sachet, in one of the nicest scents we have. It's an envelope she'll keep, and one that she'll tuck in among her most cherished possessions, where it will spread its charming fragrance for a long, long time.

These single envelopes are a nice thought, and not expensive. If you want to spread yourself a bit, you may send a box of five, each addressed in endearing terms and stamped with a dove. These come packed in a Valentine box of shiny cellophane and are tied, most appropriately, with pale blue satin ribbon and a little cluster of forget-me-nots. It's the kind of a package women swoon over.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1943: By Ely Culbertson.]

Playing on defense, when you can see that your honors are in a finessable position, do not adopt a purely passive attitude and let declarer have his own sweet way! Try to do something to disguise the situation, something on the order of what West did in the following deal:

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ Q 7 4
♥ 10 5 3
♦ A J 9 2
♣ Q 8 4

WEST
♠ K 9 8 5
♥ A 7 2
♦ Q 10 7

EAST
♠ 10 6 2
♥ J 9 8 4
♦ K 4 3

SOUTH
♠ A J 3
♥ K Q 6
♦ 8 6 5
♣ A K J 7

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 no trump	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the five of spades, dummy ducked, East played the ten, and declarer won with the jack. Declarer then led the eight of diamonds. Most players in West's position would play the seven spot and think no more about it, but this particular West was no tyro at defense. Without a second's hesitation he put up his diamond queen. Dummy's ace won and declarer returned to his own hand with a club. Another diamond then was led toward dummy. This time West played the seven and thereby put the declarer [who was not a master player] into a long huddle. After much cogitation declarer decided that West's play of the diamond queen must have been based on a holding of king-queen and one or more others, hence now went up with dummy's jack. East won with the king and returned a spade. At this point declarer was "fixed." He went up with the ace and led another diamond. West won with the ten, ran his two established spades, and then cashed the heart ace for the setting trick.

Admittedly, West's play of the diamond queen might have done no good if declarer had been shrewd enough to realize that West would not have played the queen from a holding of king-queen with one or two small guards. The fact remains that if West played the seven spot any declarer would merely cover with dummy's nine. East would win and return a spade, but now declarer would have a simple finesse against West's remaining Q-10 of diamonds, and hardly could go astray. The play described gave the defenders at least a fighting chance.

Unsympathetic Father Cannot Understand Son

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.
[Copyright: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

A letter in my mail bears the request that I answer it in my column and begins like this:

"I have a young son, 9 years old, who has been an invalid all his life. He has what I call a quick temper, and is inclined to be on the spoiled side. His father has a habit of teasing him which he strongly resents. If he was a well child, I feel he would be able to laugh it off as others do. For instance, his father loves to pass by him, rub his hand down his cheek and call him a rough or unpleasant name. Of course no red blooded person likes this, so in his rage he forgets it is his father, goes for him. Then the fight has started and before it is finished the poor child has had a terrific spanking for 'coming back' at his father.

"My husband now tells me that the boy's quick temper and lack of obedience to him is my fault, that I am a complete failure as a mother. Now, please tell me, how I am going to handle the situation and turn the boy into a nice, quiet, peace loving, soft spoken child when brought up in this environment?"

Aside from the fact that the father sounds like a man lacking in tenderness and understanding, I believe there exist two emotions that he should face and deal with. First, he is probably the type of a man who resents having a son who is not a husky, healthy lad. Second, it is quite possible he is jealous of the attention which a child suffering from repeated illness pays to the mother who nurses him.

The boy's physical health and the emotional health of three people are in danger. This is a case for a change of heart in the father and a selfless effort on the part of his wife to help him.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 7.—Ernst Lubitsch, our master director of syncopation, sin, and sophistication, makes sense on a great many other problems, too. In discussing the evils of double features, he told the history of them. During our depression, when nobody had money to go to pictures and the box office was languishing, the theaters offered not only two but sometimes three pictures, then added dishes, cosmetics, bingo, and bank night. Such measures revived business so that now the producers are afraid to let go. Unless they all agree to single features at the same time, we'll go on with the doubles, because they've formed the habit of customers, who'll go every time to a theater showing two pictures instead of one. "But when," said I, "are they going to get over that nonsense?" "Just as soon as all the producers in Hollywood agree," he answered. So we'll just have to wait for the millenium.

Be Your Age.

You can expect a big blowup at Warners any minute. Two of the biggest guys over there are scrapping about picture credits just like Butch and Bill over a couple of marbles. . . . Col. Ross Hoyt, who took over the gunnery division at Luke field, Arizona, and improved efficiency to 90 per cent, is at Metro assisting Vic Fleming on the technical end of "A Guy Named Joe" [which title will undoubtedly be changed—there isn't a Joe in the cast]. But it does seem such a waste for Col. Hoyt, and I'll bet a cookie he'd rather be out winning the war, too. . . . Honeymoon and vacation all over for Michele Morgan. She goes back to work in "Two Tickets to London" at Universal, after which the musical "Higher and Higher" at R. K. O.

Still Pitching.

Monty Woolley, running true to form, accompanied a playwright friend of his to the opening night of his play. When his pal asked him what he thought of it, Monty snarled, "For the first time in my life I envied my feet. They were asleep!" . . . Have you heard about the starlet who, after landing in three pictures, rested on her morals? . . . While Greg Ratoff was in New York, he offered Diosa Costello a part in Mae West's picture "Tropicana." "I'll make you so hot," said he, "that the producers will not only handle you with kid gloves, but asbestos ones!" Now, Greg, aren't you being a little boastful?

We Call It Work.

Stopped by to chin with Nunnally Johnson. I asked what he was working on. He said, "Three at once, thank you. I was doing 'Holy Matrimony' script and happened to leave the transom open. Some guy came along and threw 'The Last Best Hope' and 'Flare Path' into my room and escaped before I could find out whodunnit." Seems "The Last Best Hope" is from a speech Lincoln made. Even so, I don't think it's a good title for a picture, do you? I asked about his friend, John Steinbeck. He said, "Washington is still asking questions. When they wanted to know if he drank, reply was, 'Not as much as Gen. Grant.'" . . . About that time Nunnally's wife, Dorris Bowdon, popped in, and I must say matrimony agrees with her. She's much prettier since she married.

Lengths of Silk Still Available to the Shopper

BY REA SEEGER.

Lengths of real silk now can be listed among collectors' items! But there are enough bolts of the precious stuff to appease the silk hunger of spring shoppers, especially if gay colors, unusual designs, and fine quality are demanded. One of the most complete arrays of this soft, shimmering all-silk is now ready for the rush. There are stunning black and whites, beautiful small and medium patterned navy blue and whites, and some of the most brilliant hued materials ever unpacked.

Daliesque designs, huge flowering vines, provocative prints on black or navy blue with wide spacing between the designs, some silks of cool white with effective, etchinglike designs in navy blue or black as accent—these are but a few of the patterns. The silks are delectably soft and luxurious. Prices are not modest, but there are some surprising bargains. They are silks for gay springtime and summer to come, costume silks for street, daytime and evening wear. Some of the neat, precise prints will make smart suits or suit dresses.

Home for Needy Boys Asks Gift of Boxing Gloves

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Physical exertion is necessary for any child, but youngsters who have suffered from unsettled home conditions are especially in need of it, so we hope our readers can respond to a recent request from an agency which cares for needy children.

"Dear Miss Brown: We would be very grateful to receive several sets of boy's boxing gloves. We have only one pair of gloves, and they are now worn and threadbare. If any of your readers have any discarded ones, we would be very glad to have some."

The address will be provided to any interested reader.

From a Chicago boy who is now in service elsewhere in the country:

"Dear Miss Brown: Before my enlistment, my hobby had been a stamp collection. As I did not expect to find much time on my hands, I gave it away. Now I miss my old hobby. I wonder if some of your readers would be willing to send any kind of stamps to a collector who is again starting from scratch?"

We will provide further information upon request.

THE NATION'S TOP STATION IN SPORTS

In radio sports coverage, it's WGN by a big margin. During the past year

WGN was the only 50,000 watt Chicago station to broadcast major league baseball

WGN was the only Chicago station to carry the World's Series

WGN was the only Chicago station to carry the National Professional Football championship

WGN was the only Chicago station to carry the All-Star football game

WGN was the only Chicago station to carry the World's Champion boxing bouts

WGN was the only Chicago station to carry the Golden Gloves tournament.

Beside these exclusive features, WGN's daily "Sports Review" at 6:15 p. m. is known thruout the entire sports world for its many original ideas, including the WGN trophy to the most valuable basketball player of the Western conference—selection of the "Team of the Year," officially approved and recognized by the Big Ten—also the "Player of the Year," "Coach of the Year," and "Play of the Year."

Because WGN not only reports the news but makes it, it is unquestionably the nation's top station in sports.

For a nutritious diet, try to include these foods every day:

1. At least three cups of milk for children, at least one or two for adults.
2. An egg for each child [three or four a week for adults].
3. A serving of meat, poultry, fish, or dried beans.
4. A citrus fruit or tomatoes or raw cabbage for vitamin C, and at least one other fruit.
5. Two or more vegetables, stressing green [especially leafy] and yellow ones.
6. Whole grain cereals or enriched or whole wheat bread.

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1943: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Pork liver is four times as rich in iron as other livers, so it deserves more attention than it gets from homemakers who favor the more delicate flavor of calf liver.

Scald pork liver before you cook it, to improve the flavor. [Don't scald calf or beef liver, however.] Pour boiling water over it, let it stand only a few seconds, then drain it off. Dip liver slices in melted fat or oil or French dressing made with one part vinegar to two parts oil, and broil until tender. Season with salt and pepper and serve immediately. Or braise the liver. Pork liver is more often braised than broiled.

Braised Pork Liver.

Dredge the scalded, sliced liver with flour and brown on both sides in bacon fat. Season with salt and pepper and add a very small amount of water or tomato juice. Cover the pan closely and cook about 20 minutes, or until liver is tender. Sliced onions, celery, and carrots may be cooked with the liver in this way. Carrots should be pre-cooked about 5 minutes before cooking with the other vegetables and the meat.

A good serving of pork liver at dinner will give you more than an adequate supply of iron and vitamin A for the day. If you aren't fond enough of liver to take it "straight" you may prefer your iron and vitamins in the form of a liver loaf. Children of pre-school age who attend carefully managed nursery schools get this kind of loaf often for lunch. For them it is seasoned very lightly.

Pork Liver Loaf.
[Serves six.]

1 pound pork liver
1½ cups thick white sauce
1 small onion, minced
2 sprigs parsley, minced
1 cup cooked rice
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon black pepper
½ teaspoon lemon juice

Simmer liver for a few minutes in salted water, drain and put thru food grinder. Make white sauce by blending 4 tablespoons margarine with 5 tablespoons flour, adding 1½ cups milk, ½ teaspoon salt, and cooking to a thick, smooth sauce with constant stirring. Combine liver, sauce and other ingredients, pack into a greased loaf pan or casserole and bake at 350 degrees for an hour.

Stuffed Pork Liver Slices.

Have liver sliced half an inch thick. Allow a slice per person. Use left-over Spanish rice or well seasoned bread stuffing. Scald the liver, dry, and spread each slice with the prepared stuffing. Roll and skewer or tie slices. Dredge with flour and brown on all sides in a little hot fat, then add a small amount of water, not more than two or three tablespoonfuls, cover, and cook gently for half an hour. These may be baked in the oven, at 325 to 350 degrees. Sour cream, mushroom sauce or tomato juice may be used as the liquid, in which case the quantity may be increased.

Fried Pork Liver.

Liver must be fried carefully or it will become tough and leathery. Roll the scalded, sliced liver in seasoned flour and place in a skillet with a small amount of fat. Brown on both sides, at not too high a temperature [high heat causes toughening], then reduce heat and continue cooking gently until liver is done. It takes only a few minutes after browning to complete the cooking.

If onions are to be fried with liver, start them first, for they'll take more cooking than the meat.

Jewish Women's Group to End Seminars Today

The closing program in a series of educational seminars will bring Henry L. McCarthy before the Chicago women's division of the American Jewish congress at 10 o'clock today in the Standard club. Mr. McCarthy, who is regional director of the social security board, will talk on "Social Security Thru War to Peace." A panel of Jewish leaders will discuss "The Future of the Jew," Rabbi Jacob J. Weinstein of K. A. M. temple discussing the subject as it pertains to the United States, Dr. Ernst Schwarz, director of the Good Neighbor forum, telling about the prospects in Latin America, and Dr. Felix A. Levy of Temple Emanuel giving the Palestinian outlook. Mrs. Avis C. Shulman has been in charge of the series of meetings.

Designs with Heart Motif

HEART DESIGNS.

Heart motifs always have been popular in women's and children's fashions. In today's designs, heart applique adorns a house frock and a child's princess dress, and heart pockets do decorative and utilitarian duty on an apron.

Style No. 2809 is designed for sizes small, medium, and large. Medium size requires 1¼ yards of 35 inch material with 2 yards of ruffling.

Style No. 3343 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8. Size 4 requires 1⅝ yards of 35 inch fabric with ¼ yard for collar and cuffs and ⅛ yard for heart applique. Panties require ¾ yard of 35 inch material.

Style No. 3170 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 and 36, 38, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 4¾ yards of 35 inch material with 1 yard of contrasting for applique and binding.

Each pattern costs 10 cents, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost (coin preferred—wrap it carefully), for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT: Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired and write your name and address plainly. The Clotilde pattern book costs 15 cents, 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

TODAY'S $5 PRIZE RECIPE

SAVORY RICE.
[Serves four.]

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 green pepper, chopped
1 medium onion, chopped
½ small clove of garlic, minced
1¼ cups tomatoes
Salt and pepper to taste
½ teaspoon ground cloves
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon celery seed
1½ cups cooked rice

Melt butter in skillet and add green pepper, onion, and garlic. Cook gently for 5 minutes. Remove garlic. Add tomatoes, salt, pepper, spices, and rice. Stir all together and turn into baking dish. Sprinkle with cracker crumbs and bake until lightly browned, about 20 minutes. If desired this dish may be served without baking. It should then be simmered gently for 5 or 10 minutes or until some of the liquid from the tomatoes has evaporated.

KEEP GOING! LANDIS TELLS WARTIME BASEBALL

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

ACCORDING to Yank, the army's overseas magazine, the commander of a landing party about to put ashore on the coast of Africa gave his men the usual last minute precautionary instructions, and then asked, "Now, are there any questions?" . . . "Yes, sir," answered a private, "have you heard how the Army-Notre Dame football game came out?" . . . The biggest swimming pool in the world is under construction at Great Lakes Naval station. . . . It will be 165 feet by 75. . . . Frankie Brimsek, star Boston Bruin hockey goalie, went thru 28 games this year before registering his first shutout. . . . The "N" Men's club of Northwestern university has presented special memorial buttons to the parents of three former Wildcat athletes who have lost their lives in the war. . . . The trio includes Lt. Joe Finch, captain of the 1940 track team, killed in the battle of the Solomons; Flying Cadet Don McCarnes of the 1941 basketball squad, and Flying Cadet Chase Fannon, 1939 Western conference golf champion. . . . Minnesota scored its first three Big Ten basketball victories on a total margin of four points. . . . The Gophers topped Purdue by two points and Iowa and Northwestern by a point each. . . . Eddie Miller, the shortstop recently acquired by the Reds from the Braves, is a Florida high school basketball official in winter. . . . Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, the army's head man in North Africa, coached the St. Mary's [San Antonio] football team in 1916. . . .

Clarence [Nibs] Price, who has been coach of the University of California basketball squad for 19 years, never was a player. . . . Harry Black, veteran center of the Hollywood sextet of the Southern California Hockey league, seems to be getting the breaks. . . . He suffered a broken leg in a game last season. . . . The other night it happened again in a duel with the Minter Field Flyers. . . . Among the new officers at St. Mary's Navy Pre-Flight school is Al Nichelini, who played half back for St. Mary's college. . . . He was vice principal of a high school in Orland, Cal., before entering the navy. . . . Fred Haner, general manager of Detroit's Olympia, has decided that an automobile's place in winter is in a garage. . . . Fred was without his bus for four days while it was snowed in near his home. . . . Lefty O'Doul, Harry Heilmann, Howard Ehmke, and Bob Meusel all served on submarines in World War I.

Neighbors.

What is life without our neighbors—
Ruth and Nickie down the street?
What uplifting consolation
Every now and then to meet.

Happy children, guileless voices,
Sweethearts strolling hand in hand,
Neighbors chatting with their neighbors—
Only neighbors understand.

Think how grand would be our status
If the world around were thus:
Less of "I" and "mine" and hatred,
More of "we" and "our" and "us."

DOUG BENTLEY GETS 6 POINTS; HAWKS WIN, 8-4

Thoms Fires 3 Goals in Rout of Rangers.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Blackhawks beat the Rangers, 8 to 4, in Chicago Stadium last night and tho this fell somewhat short of being an encore for the 10 to 1 plastering administered to the same team in the same rink on Jan. 28, no protests were lodged by any of the 13,520 fanatics present to view the frolic.

As a compensation for seeing two fewer goals the addicts were treated to one of the best of the season's fights, a vicious clash between Red Hamill of the Blackhawks and Felix Mancuso of the Rangers. Red drew a major penalty for drawing blood out of Felix's scalp and Felix got a major for starting the vendetta.

In that 10 to 1 affair, the regular patrons will recall that the Doug Bentley-Max Bentley-Bill Thoms line put on a great show, much of it in the final period. They scored 18 points on the prior occasion, Max tying the National Hockey league record with seven points and setting another record with four goals in the final session. The line was only a bit less spectacular last night.

Bentleys Have 50 Points Each.

Doug made three goals and three assists for a six point showing. Thoms made three goals and two assists and Max accounted for four assists. Thus the line had a total of 15 points. The Bentley brothers now are tied with 50 points each for the season, five points over the all-time Hawk point record set by Thoms last season.

The Hawks were not assured of victory until they got busy in the last five minutes. They were leading only 5 to 4 when Doug Bentley, assisted by Thoms and Earl Seibert, scored in 15:34. Thoms tallied in 16:07, assisted by Max and Doug. In 17:06 Thoms again tallied, assisted by Doug and Max, to effect the final score.

Rangers Lead Twice.

The Hawks were behind twice in the first period. Bob Kirkpatrick started the evening's caging in 5:02 and Cully Dahlstrom tied it at 1 to 1 in 8:01. Kirkpatrick again put the New Yorkers ahead in 19:15 and Thoms, with the Bentleys assisting, tied the score in 19:34.

Chicago went ahead in 1:05 of the second period. Fido Purpur did it, assisted by Art Wiebe. Doug Bentley, helped by Dahlstrom and Seibert, gave the Hawks a 4 to 2 edge in 7:04 of the second period, but a goal by Phil Watson tightened it up. Doug Bentley's second goal, in which Max and Thoms assisted, again gave Chicago a two goal margin in 17:39 of the second period. This was cut to a one goal margin—5 to 4—when Patrick beat Goalie Bert Gardiner in 6:15 of the third period.

Then the Bentley-Bentley-Thoms put on the aforesaid circus.

Hawks Make Up Ground.

The success gave the Hawks a season record of four victories and one defeat in Stadium competition against the Rangers. It was their 12th home victory against five ties and two defeats. They have won only one game away from home and it was from Toronto, not the poor Rangers.

Chicago gained back the points the fifth place Montreal Canadiens gained Saturday night and now leads the Montrealers by 2½ games. The Hawks also gained a game on the third place Maple Leafs whom they trail by only two games.

The new $10,000 scoreboard was used for the first time and worked all right.

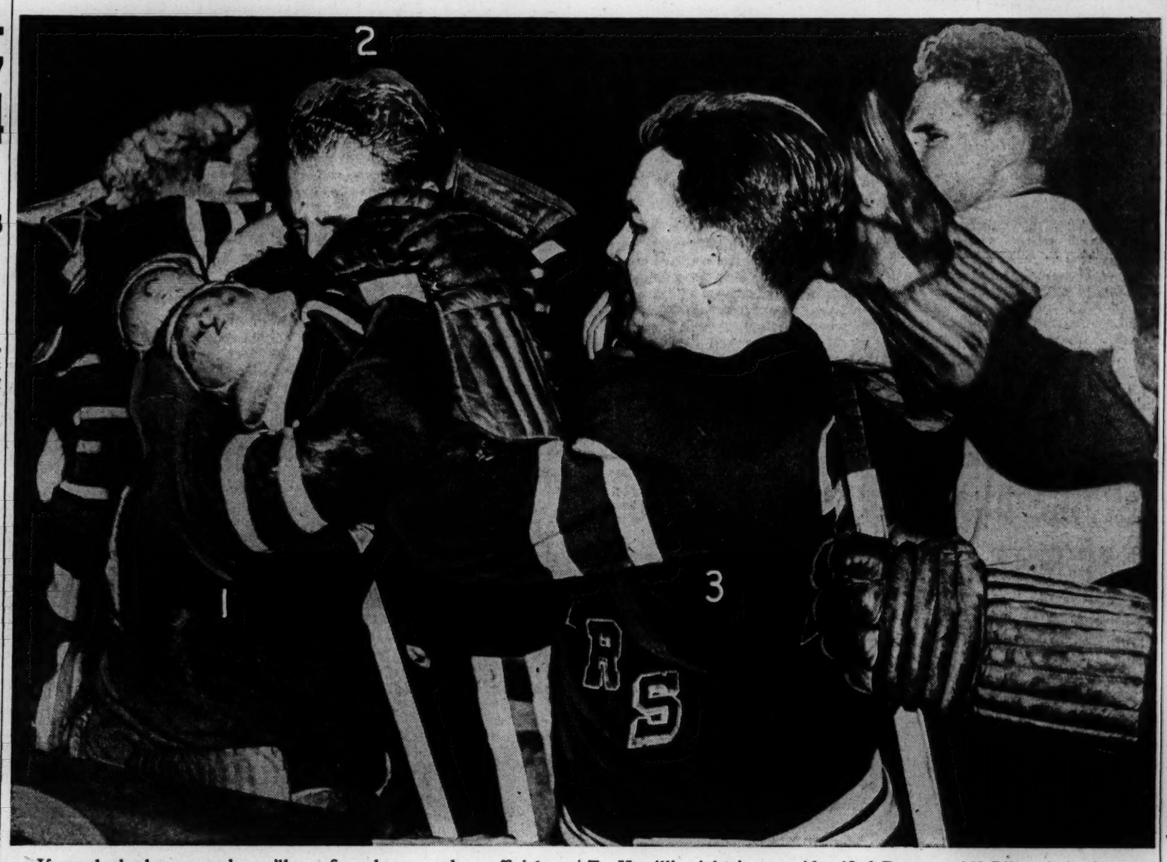
HOOD AND BROWN ARE SIGNED FOR BOUT IN STADIUM

Hubert Hood, last year's Chicagoland Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, and Clarence Brown, former Catholic Youth organization title holder, have been matched to meet in a 10 round bout in Chicago Stadium Feb. 15. It will be a preliminary to a 10 round event between Lem Franklin, also a Golden Gloves graduate, and Lee Savold, Paterson, N. J.

Savold will open training in Ringside Loop gymnasium this afternoon.

A 10 round semi-windup on the forthcoming card will bring together Joe Maxin of Cleveland and Clayton Worlds. Maxin won the 1940 Golden Gloves middleweight title.

A BATTLE ROYAL ON STADIUM ICE



If you look close enough you'll see five players and an official are involved in this battle which flared between the Blackhawks and Rangers last night on Stadium ice. A headlock has been clamped on Felix Mancuso (No. 1) of Rangers by Red Hamill (No. 2), Hawk left winger. To Hamill's right is an unidentified Ranger. Alf Pike of the Rangers (No. 3) tugs at Hamill, while another player leans his stick against Pike. The official at right trying to get to the principals is Referee Bill Chadwick. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

LITTLE OHIO LAD OWNS BIG PUNCH

Flyweight Wins Trip to Chicago Golden Gloves.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Feb. 7.—Michael Laquatra Jr., a model of reticence until he climbs into a boxing ring and levels his right hand at an opponent's chin, is going to make another trip to Chicago. Ten years ago, in the first season of the Century of Progress Exposition, Michael was a daily regular at the fair over a two weeks' stay with relatives on the west side.

This time he is coming, not as a sightseer, but as the Cleveland Plain Dealer's flyweight representative in the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions. Mike isn't interested these days in a Skyride or a Pageant of Transportation or a gondola cruise. His main objective in this 1943 journey is a building he didn't see on his other visit. It's the Chicago Stadium, scene of the Tournament of Champions, on Feb. 22, 23, and 24. And Mike will not be averse to still another ride here on March 5, date of the grand finals of the nation's biggest punching party.

Scores Knockout in First.

The 18 year old Laquatra will not have to spend much time in seeing the Stadium if he conducts himself as he did in the Plain Dealer finals at the Arena here last Friday night. Mike set some sort of time record in accomplishing his chores on that evening. Two short, jolting rights to the target provided by Partee Burke's chin wound up the Laquatra job with a technical knockout victory in the first round. And young Master Burke was not regarded as a cinch, being a younger brother of Billy Burke, a Cleveland Golden Gloves welterweight champion of other days.

Attends High School.

Mike's triumph added another score for his side in the sports rivalry between East Tech High school here and Central High, where young Burke is a student.

Laquatra, son of a defense worker, made his Golden Gloves debut in the 1942 novice tournament and won the 112 pound crown so handily that he was chosen to represent Cleveland in the eastern All-American and All-American bouts in Boston. The result was two more championships for Laquatra. Now Mike isn't satisfied with these honors, and won't be until he walks out of the Stadium ring with a Golden Glove.

Tim Dalton's West Side Irish Pals Will Cheer Him Thursday

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Tim Dalton, a west side Irish boy, displays plenty of good humor around his neighborhood—but he shows a fighting disposition in the ring. The lads who faced him in the north side Golden Gloves tournament found that out. Now, with a sectional championship secured, Tim will take on Melvyn Johnson of the C. Y. O. Thursday night with the Chicago Golden Gloves lightweight title at stake. The occasion will be the city finals—north side vs. south side—which will be held in the Armory, 16th street and Michigan avenue.

Tim's father, whose name also is Timothy, plans to be there and he expects the youngster to whack his opponent around as he has been doing so successfully of late. The elder Dalton, who is a war plant worker, seldom misses one of the young man's fights. Tim also will be encouraged by the cheers of his pals from the neighborhood of his home at 2817 West Cullerton avenue, in the district southeast of Douglas park.

Has Many West Side Friends.

Tim has plenty of west side friends for he has been there all his life When he was born, the family lived at 21st and Racine. For the last 10 years they've been in their present home. Tim attended the St. Ludmille parish school and then did a bit of studying at Harrison Tech before going to work in a war plant. He'll be 18 years old next month, so he expects it will be the army for him after that.

Just at present, however, he's concentrating on his forthcoming bout with Johnson. If he can win, it will be Tim's biggest achievement in his boxing career, which has lasted a little more than a year.

Last season Tim won the Chicago Golden Gloves lightweight championship in the novice class. Now he has moved right along and has gained recognition as one of the best of the open division fighters. He does his training in the Madison A. C. gym under Pop Howard.

Wins 58 of 66 Fights.

Pop has taught the youngster plenty of ring generalship and has drilled him on good straight hitting tactics. Tim has won 58 of his 66 fights.

Tim's brother, Dick, also has taken up boxing. He does all right, too. Dick went to the finals of the north side tournament before dropping a decision to Dick Roche of Navy pier. Tim has another brother, Jack, who is 6 years old, and also a sister, Geraldine, who are among his stanchest fans. His mother also sees him box occasionally.

Tim's opponent in Thursday's lightweight title bout holds the C. Y. O. championship — so the fight is expected to be mighty tough. In taking the south side title, Johnson smothered all opposition to gain recognition as one of the standouts of that section.

Sixteen Title Bouts Thursday.

There will be 16 championship bouts on the program Thursday night—8 in the open division and 8 in the novice. The open winners will go on to the Tournament of Champions in the Stadium Feb. 22, 23, and 24, in which they will meet the winners from all of the out-of-town centers which are coöperating with Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in the sponsorship of eliminations.

One of the busiest weeks of the campaign will be launched tonight with action in four centers—Kansas City, Minneapolis, Terre Haute, and Oklahoma City. First round bouts are scheduled in all of these tournaments.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Indiana and Illinois, undefeated Western conference basketball leaders, played to form Saturday evening in victories over Michigan and Ohio State, respectively, and there is no reason to doubt but that each will repeat tonight against the same opponents. Wisconsin entertains Chicago in the third Big Ten game scheduled tonight and it's very likely the Maroons will lose their 36th consecutive Big Ten game.

Neither Illinois nor Indiana had an easy time Saturday, but each had the scoring punch required to win.

Indiana's 32 points, while good enough for the Hoosiers' 14th victory of the season and the seventh in conference competition, was far below its game average of 55 points.

Illinois' balanced scoring was too much for the Buckeyes, as probably will be the case again tonight. Andy Phillip got 19 points in his team's 60 to 48 victory, Illinois' sixth in the conference.

Northwestern will play tonight at Great Lakes.

Northwestern's Otto Graham scored 21 points against Purdue for the best individual performance Saturday. This raises his point total to 88 for five Big Ten games, and gives him fourth place in the individual standings behind Phillip of Illinois, the leader, with 126 points; Ralph Hamilton of Indiana, 105 points, and Tom Chapman of Iowa, 94 points.

On average per game, however, Graham is in second place with 17.60 points. Phillip is the leader with an average of 21 points for six games.

GAME WILL ASK NO U. S. FAVORS TO STAY ALIVE

Elmer Davis Cites Sport's Benefits.

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—Baseball's status in a United States girded for war was made clear tonight at the 20th annual dinner of the New York Baseball Writers' association by Commissioner K. M. Landis.

Landis declared he "didn't want any one to think that baseball was asking special favors, but that as long as each team has nine men to put on the field there will be baseball.

"I have already undertaken to arrange the broadcast of the season's opening game to the troops overseas," he said.

The commissioner's statement came in answer to a speech by Quentin Reynolds, war correspondent, who chided baseball officials for not thinking enough of their sport to go to Washington and tell the government that baseball was necessary and should be continued.

Writer Urges, "Go to Washington."

Reynolds added, "There are 60 million fans in this country and they want baseball continued."

Before urging the Washington baseball lobby, the former Brown university athlete related personal experiences from overseas showing that the soldiers want to hear about baseball above everything else.

When Reynolds finished Landis got up, shook his white hair and, pointing a finger at Reynolds, replied:

"I've got to disagree with you, Bud. Unless some sort of a rule or law is passed to make it impossible to place nine men on the field baseball is not dead.

"We do not want baseball in America exempt from the liabilities of common life in America. We want the same rules applied and enforced on us as on every one else.

Wants no Special Favors.

"When I give thought to the statutes ruling our lives in war, I think of those fellows in New Guinea crawling in trenches and those fellows in Africa. They have complied with those statutes.

"This is baseball's position and I take full responsibility for it. I don't want any man in the stands to think that any man on the field is exempt from any law or rule or statute.

"On the question of going to Washington. I didn't want a story to come out of Washington that would justify the inference that we are seeking any better treatment or exemptions from the conditions of war. I think baseball is strong enough that we don't need to send a lobby and can leave the situation to the 60 million fans.

Elmer Davis Boosts Sports.

"And about the question of whether baseball is going to die or is going to live, I've formed the habit of living."

Elmer Davis, director of the office of war information, followed the two debaters and said he was speaking unofficially, but "my broadcasts overseas contain a great amount of sports to 1,500,000 men and they always ask for more. If there is no baseball news this summer my customers overseas are going to put up a helluva squawk."

Referring to the previous speakers, he continued: "There is the question of whether baseball should carry on with what is left. The fact is our entire civilian life and economy has to carry on with what is left."

Other speakers included Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker and Wendell Willkie.

As in the past the dinner was conducted in a spirit of fun and frolic and the writers spared no feelings in lampooning baseball's best known officials.

La Guardia Boosts Baseball.

In one skit showing "Landis" questioning "Paul McNutt" of the man power commission and "Joseph Eastman" of the office of defense transportation as to baseball's 1943 status Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York participated in person.

Altho the piece was humorous, La Guardia injected some seriousness as he told "McNutt" and "Eastman" that "you kicked us around on sugar, then on coffee and now on shoes but you are not going to kick us around on baseball."

GERMAN BOMBS INJURE WILDE IN RAID ON BRITAIN

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP).—Jimmy Wilde, former world flyweight boxing champion and one of Britain's best known fighters, was injured today when German planes bombed a town in southeast England, killing several persons. Wilde, born in Pontypridd, Wales, in 1892, held the flyweight title 11 years. He retired in 1922 after losing the championship to Pancho Villa, who knocked him out in seven rounds in New York City.

Wilde won the championship by knocking out the Zulu Kid in London, Dec. 18, 1911. In 1913-'14 he won 39 consecutive fights. One of his most famous ring achievements was a 17 round knockout of Pete Herman, former world bantamweight champion, in London in 1921.

REDSKINS BEAT STUDEBAKERS IN OVERTIME, 47-45

The Sheboygan Redskins defeated the Studebaker Champions of Chicago, 47 to 45, in an overtime National Basketball league game in Cicero stadium last night. Bob Regh, Redskin guard, made the winning basket with a pivot shot, two minutes before the end of the overtime period, after the regulation game had ended with the score 45 to 45.

The victory gave Sheboygan third place in the league standings. Lineup:

Five Track Teams in Big Ten to Meet at Chicago Saturday

Track athletes representing five Big Ten institutions will compete in a Little Big Ten meet this week, and the scramble for points among the five—Wisconsin, Minnesota, Purdue, Northwestern, and Chicago—may provide a clew to the Western conference meet, three weeks later. The five way meet will be held in the University of Chicago fieldhouse Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock.

Under ordinary circumstances, the five teams competing in this week's meet would be considered the smaller fry of the Big Ten. Last year Wisconsin ranked fifth, and the others were seventh, eighth, ninth, and tenth. Military service, actual or prospective, of many of the athletes is likely to make obsolete any conjecture on the basis of last year's results, and the meet this week as well as the conference affair March 5 and 6 is expected to produce upsets.

Score 44½ Points Last Year.

The five teams competing this week accumulated a total of 44½ points in last year's indoor meet, but of the athletes responsible for that sum, only two are in competition: Bob Beierly and Ashley Anderson, both of Wisconsin. Beierly, conference shot put champion, is the only title holder who will compete. Anderson tied for third in the pole vault.

Led by Beierly and Anderson, Wisconsin should have an edge Saturday night. The Badgers also have Bob Hodgell, whose 6 feet 4 inch jump at Iowa last week, stands as the best mark by any entrant, as well as John Towle, as good a bet as any in the low hurdles, Roger Foster, a pole vaulter, and Walter Lambert, a competent high hurdler.

Chicago and Minnesota are expected to provide the strongest challenge to the Badgers. Both teams took a beating from Illinois in the triangular meet in Champaign last week, but either might overcome Wisconsin. The Maroons' two best entrants are Harrison Beardsley, a good quarter and half miler, and Ray Randall, who started his collegiate career as a half miler, but has found better going in the two mile run, in which he and Clarence Dunn of Illinois are the only two athletes in the Big 10 who have broken 10 minutes this season. Two other Maroons, Bob Kincheloe, a vaulter, and Aubrey Moore, a sophomore sprinter and hurdler, have been inconsistent in showings this season, but also could influence the meet results.

Frank Adams, Minnesota high hurdler, and Ralph Pohland, who beat Beardsley in the 880 in Champaign last week, head the Gopher delegation, which also includes Floyd Foslien, a two miler edged out by Randall last week, Chuck Fleenor, a good miler, and Chuck Hosfield, a vaulter.

Two Lack Team Balance.

Purdue and Northwestern, tho possessing outstanding individual entrants, will suffer from a lack of team balance. The Boilermakers have Bill Bancker, possibly the best sprinter entered, George Archer, a capable quarter miler, and Chuck Duesler, a formidable distance runner. The Wildcats, who have had no conference competition so far this season, have lost Don Smith, last year's cochampion in the high jump.

SERVICE BOXING LEAGUE LEADERS TO MEET TONIGHT

Camp Grant and Navy Pier will meet in a match in the pier auditorium tonight which will go a long way toward determining the winner of the Service Men's Amateur Boxing league championship. Camp Grant, which is in first place with six victories and two draws, will be represented by its strongest team, the squad which will carry the camp's colors in the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions Feb. 22, 23, and 24.

Navy pier, which won four championships in the north side Golden Gloves sectional tournament last week, is second in the league standings, with six triumphs, two ties, and one defeat. The sailor delegation will include Dick Roche, north side open bantamweight winner, and Russell Fitzsimmons, north section open heavyweight victor. Pairings:

Richard Roche, Navy pier, vs. Gene Roberts, Camp Grant, 118.

Marine Joe Wilkerson, Navy pier, vs. Herb Mashino, Camp Grant, 126.

Frank Sidote, Navy pier, vs. Clinton Hirata, Camp Grant, 135.

Ken Werner, Navy pier, vs. Edwin Marsh, Camp Grant, 147.

Al Wills, Navy pier, vs. William Zielke, Camp Grant, 175.

Russell Fitzsimmons, Navy pier, vs. Joe Chuckro, Camp Grant, heavyweights.

HARTWIG TO STAY AS SHAUGHNESSY HELPER AT PITT

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 7 (AP).—Clark D. Shaughnessy, new head football coach at the University of Pittsburgh, announced tonight Charles [Doc] Hartwig, assistant football coach at Pitt for the last two seasons, would be retained as an aid. Hartwig is the second assistant Shaughnessy has named since he came here last week from the University of Maryland. Dr. Daniel Fortmann, former Colgate university and Chicago Bear pro guard, was the first assistant named.

Boston College Coach to Report to Navy

Newton, Mass., Feb. 7 (AP).—Denny Myers, Boston college football coach, tonight revealed that he has received orders from the navy to report Thursday at the North Carolina pre-flight school at Chapel Hill. Myers, who volunteered for service in December, expects to be commissioned and given a physical training assignment when he reports for duty. Because of college football's uncertain prospects, Boston college athletic officials indicated that no action regarding Myers' successor would be taken in the near future.

Reasoner and Gomez Meet Again Tonight

Al Reasoner, Hines, Ill., lightweight and Alvin Gomez will meet for the third time in seven weeks tonight in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. Gomez held his 22 year old rival to an eight round draw in their first encounter, but in a rematch Al scored a clear decision in 10 rounds. Each will be making his debut at 12 rounds, the scheduled distance of this evening's encore.

Jackie Nichols, Gary lightweight, who has been doing almost all his fighting in the larger arenas in this city, will meet Jimmy Joyce, also of Gary, in a six round secondary feature.

Tito Taylor, south side middleweight, who beat Johnny O'Brien of Calumet City in Milwaukee auditorium New Year's afternoon, will return to action in a five round event against Jack Hill of Bloomington, Ill.

Al Nedoff, 135 pounder, still another Gary product, is paired with Sam Scully, and Elbert Adams, 1942 city Golden Gloves featherweight champion, is matched with Young Ted Lewis in preliminary matches of four rounds.

Ivan Kalmikoff will oppose Walter Palmer in the main engagement of Promoter Fred Kohler's wrestling show tonight in White City, 63d street and South Park avenue.

WINN FROWNS ON TRANSFER OF KENTUCKY DERBY

A suggestion offered last night that the 1943 Kentucky Derby might be saved by transferring it to Chicago was vetoed by Matt J. Winn, 81 year old head of the Churchill Downs track, home of horse racing's biggest event.

Winn, who is wintering in Chicago said, "the Derby will be held at Churchill Downs or not at all."

He said there had been no developments since the suggestion made Saturday by Joseph L. Eastman, director of the office of defense transportation, that the Derby be eliminated to limit railroad and automobile traffic.

Winn, who has not yet received an official request for this action from the government, said he may have a statement to make soon.

DRS CAPTURES LEFT HANDERS' BOWLING TITLE

Charley Drs, a policeman, is Chicago's new left-handed bowling champion. Drs defeated Norman Nelson, 4,163 pins to 3,890, in a 21 game match which was concluded yesterday with two seven game blocks. The match, rolled at the Dearborn-Jackson recreation, started with one block Saturday night. Drs won all three blocks as well as high game honors with a 267 score.

Visitation Wins Grammar School Basketball Title

The Visitation team won the annual Queen of Angels grammar school basketball championship yesterday by defeating St. Benedict's, 25 to 22, in the final game in the Queen of Angels parish hall. St. Frances Xavier won third place in the tournament by defeating Queen of Angels, the defending champions, in a consolation game, 25 to 18.

Budweisers Win Bowling Sweep with 3,022 Total

The Budweisers won first place in the weekly Chicago Sunday bowling sweepstakes at the Madison Athletic club, 4717 West Madison street, last night with a score of 3,022. The Prima Pilsners were second with 2,825 and the Ace Fasteners third with 2,818. Joe Wilman of the Budweisers had the high individual series, 658.

MT. CARMEL WINS OVER DE LA SALLE TO CAPTURE LEAD

Joliet Routs St. Patrick, 83 to 32.

Mount Carmel took the lead in the south section of the Catholic league basketball campaign yesterday as its senior team rallied in the fourth period to defeat De La Salle, 28 to 26, on the latter's floor. It was the fifth victory in six starts for Mount Carmel. Leo is second with four victories and one defeat.

Ernie Kovack, who was the high scorer with nine points, scored Mount Carmel's winning points with a free throw and basket which climaxed the last quarter drive. Mount Carmel scored 11 points in the fourth period while yielding only two to De La Salle which had led all the way.

The highest score of the league competition this season was compiled by Catholic High of Joliet as it swamped St. Patrick, 83 to 32, in a senior game. The Joliet juniors also won, 47 to 14, to stay in a tie with Leo, each with four victories and one defeat.

The St. Philip juniors routed Loyola, 66 to 17, on the St. Philip floor to tie with St. Mel for the north section lead with four victories in five games. Bill O'Donnell, with a short shot in the fourth quarter, scored Loyola's only basket.

Sparta Beats Italians, 3-1, in Cup Game

BY OFFSIDE.

The Sparta Reserves defeated the Italian A. C., 3 to 1, yesterday in a National Amateur Soccer cup game played in the Sparta stadium. The game broke a string of postponements which have pestered soccer players and fans for weeks.

The Sparta club, including three regulars, Joe Silovsky, George Hamous, and Joe Werier, was held scoreless for 40 minutes, but broke thru for its first goal when George Molvie shot into the net from 10 yards. With only a minute left in the first period Hamous scored from 20 yards on a free kick to give the Reserves a two goal lead at the intermission.

The Italian A. C. attacked strongly in the second period and finally scored after 35 minutes when Udino Marchiori drove under Goalie Silovsky's hands for the only Italian goal.

The Reserves came back to score their final goal two minutes later when James Pagni kicked past Nello Menoni, who was unable to stop the shot while lying on the ground.

NAVY PIER FIVE VISITS LOYOLA FLOOR TONIGHT

Loyola university will oppose Navy Pier's Aero-Macs tonight in Loyola gymnasium in a basketball game which will mark the Ramblers' final home appearance until March 1, when they conclude their schedule against the University of Detroit. The game will begin at 8:15.

Loyola will be seeking its 10th victory in 16 games and its second triumph over the Navy Pier five. The Ramblers gained their first triumph over the Aero-Macs last week when they came from behind in the second half to win, 38 to 33.

Lt. John Murphy, Navy Pier coach, last night indicated he would retain the same starting lineup that opposed Loyola in last week's match. The starters are Center Bob Custer, Forwards Joe King and Bob Curran, and Guards Larry McKay and Sam Muscato. The Loyola lineup will be composed of Capt. Jack Stanton and Jack Dwan at forwards, Bernard Carmen at center, and Bob Tietz and Bill Durkin at guards.

PERSONS LISTED BY DIES DEMAND END OF QUIZZES

Joseph Curran Joins in Attack on Committee.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7.—Abolishment of the Dies congressional committee will be urged tomorrow in a "message" to congress in the form of a full page advertisment in the Washington Post. Among the 103 purported signers are several persons accused by the Dies committee of communistic activities.

"The Dies committee has utilized its congressional prestige to continue an undemocratic, un-American campaign of vilification against thousands of the staunchest supporters of the war and of the Democratic way of life," says the advertisment. Conspicuous among the signers are Joseph Curran and Mary McLeod Bethune. Curran heads the violent National Maritime union which has been described as a "hotbed of communism," and himself is listed as one of the close friends of communism in this country. Mrs. Bethune, an employé of the national youth administration, was listed only last week by the committee for her communist sympathies.

LABOR RACKETS CLEANUP URGED BY RICKENBACKER

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, World war ace, tonight assailed the failure of government officials to halt labor racketeering. He addressed a meeting of New York baseball writers.

Stating he had noticed that the war man power commission had placed fathers in 20 occupational groups on notice that they would have to transfer to war jobs or face induction into the armed service this spring, Rickenbacker said:

"I am shocked to find that our officials in Washington have omitted challenging a group known more commonly as labor racketeers of the 'graft' age, and I spell it with a 'g' and not a 'd.'

"And to congress I say again—face the facts and show the traditional American intestinal fortitude by legislating this cancerous element from our midst. Why should these racketeers be immune from reporting their incomes or paying taxes on their tributes from the million?

"Let us be honest with ourselves first, in order that we may be honest with the millions of young men who are fighting, bleeding and dying for us."

HAMMOND YOUTH KILLED, FRIEND INJURED BY AUTO

Two Hammond youths were injured, one fatally, when struck yesterday by an automobile which, Hammond police said, sped away leaving the two lying in the street. John L. Germick, 18 years old, 7014 Columbia avenue, died in St. Margaret's hospital from a skull fracture and other injuries. Mathew Myszak, 17, 1241 172d street, who suffered a leg fracture, said he and Germick were walking along 169th street in Hammond when struck.

Up to 4 p. m. 52 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 48 were killed in Chicago, where 1,320 were injured.

50 Offer Blood to Youth After Appeal in Tribune

More than 50 persons responded to an appeal for blood donors for Jerry Tripp, 13 years old, of Harvard, McHenry county, who is in critical condition at the Illinois Research hospital suffering with Bright's disease. The appeal, carried in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE, was made by the boy's parents who said that driving conditions made it impossible for friends and relatives in Harvard to come to the boy's aid. Hospital authorities said the response was magnificent and that appointments made with the volunteer donors would keep them busy for the major part of the week.

MANY IN FRANCE SOON MUST GO WITHOUT BREAD

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

BERNE, Switzerland, Feb. 7.—Soon there threatens to be no daily bread for many persons in France.

In 1942 the minister of agriculture, Jacques Le Roy Ladurie—he has resigned since then—ordered that bread grains be harvested and threshed as early as possible.

Vichy hoped that something would turn up to bridge the gap to the 1943 crop, much of it already pledged to Germany. Instead of a miracle came a calamity. North Africa was occupied by the allied nations, and Algerian, Moroccan, and Tunisian wheat is no longer available. Thus, this year the home harvest must suffice for the consumption, not of 12 months, but of 14.

FRANK L. POLK DIES; DIPLOMAT OF WORLD WAR

New York, Feb. 7 [Special].—Frank Lyon Polk, acting secretary of state during the administration of President Wilson, died today in his 5th avenue home after a brief illness. He was 71 years old.

Frank L. Polk.

Polk, who was a great nephew of James K. Polk, 11th President of the United States, and a grandson of Lt. Gen. Leonidas Polk, the "fighting bishop" of the confederacy, was undersecretary of state from 1915 to 1920.

He was head of the state department while President Wilson and Robert Lansing, secretary of state, attended the Paris peace conference and headed the American delegation at the conference after Wilson and Lansing returned to the United States.

In addition to Mrs. Polk, he is survived by three sons, John M. Polk, James P. Polk, and Frank L. Polk Jr., and two daughters, Alice P. Polk and Mrs. Elizabeth P. Guest.

PARITY SYSTEM BLOCKADES FOOD, IOWAN ASSERTS

With an obsolete farm price parity straitjacket, the federal government keeps half the agricultural workers of the United States from raising food, Prof. Theodore W. Schultz, head of the department of economics at Iowa State college, charged yesterday. He spoke on the university of Chicago Round Table broadcast.

"Thru loans and parity, the government has created a tremendous surplus of wheat," he said, "yet we do not convert it into milk, meat or other products, and in the south we have the farmers raising unnecessary cotton instead of food.

"If we could get away from parity, get some prices down on cotton and wheat and get prices on nutritional foods up, the center of gravity of farm prices wouldn't change much and this country would have food. We are not raising enough nutritious meat products, milk, eggs, potatoes, dried peas, soy beans, and cereals."

3D TANK LANDER IS LAUNCHED AT YARD IN SENECA

A crowd of more than 7,000 workers and their families gathered yesterday at the shipyards of the Chicago Bridge and Iron company in Seneca, Ill., to witness the launching of the third tank landing ship constructed since Dec. 13. Mrs. Mary Bell, counselor of women employed at the shipyard, was sponsor. She is the wife of Lt. Harold Bell, on duty with an army tank destroyer battalion in the Pacific area. Comm. Paul S. Goen, assistant navy supervisor of shipbuilding in the Chicago area, told the workers that the first vessel they had constructed and launched last December was in the war zone. H. B. Horton, treasurer of the company, made an appeal for 1,500 additional skilled workers to speed up the building program.

Clara Davies, Mother of Actor Ivor Novello, Dies

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP).—Clara Novello Davies, 81, singing teacher and mother of the actor-producer Ivor Novello, died in her sleep today at her Park Lane home. A native of Cardiff, she was the founder of the Royal Welsh Ladies' choir which won highest honors at the Chicago World's Fair of 1893. She had made more than 40 crossings of the Atlantic. In addition to a career in the theater which began in 1921, her son wrote the songs "Keep the Home Fires Burning" and "Dream Boat."

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

SEEK TO BREAK "BOTTLE NECK" ON WAGE PLEAS

Worker Discontent Laid to WLB.

In an effort to break the war labor board bottleneck in Washington which has been the cause of numerous unauthorized strikes, resulted in discontent among workers, and threatened employment in private industry, regional WLB representatives met in the Hotel Sherman yesterday and Saturday in a series of decentralization conferences.

Contracts agreed to between union workers and employers have been held up for approval by WLB's Washington office, after having received the blessing of the regional WLB office here. This delay, which leaves employers powerless to grant wage increases embodied in the new contracts, has been the cause of several walkouts.

Dr. Robert K. Burns, chairman of the regional WLB, said the conferences were aimed at decentralizing the functions of the board and letting the regional board settle regional problems. The demand for Washington approval has cluttered up the dockets of the local boards.

Report 2,000 Cases Pending.

It was reported that the regional board has received more than 4,000 complaints or petitions from local business concerns since it opened here in November, and that it is 2,000 cases behind in its hearings. Dr. Burns said, however, that the board has not been swamped with complaints or petitions.

Employés in many civilian businesses are being lured into war industry, it was reported, and the private concerns are appealing frantically to the WLB for permission to adjust wages of discontented workers. The recent "work in war industry or fight" pronouncement of the war man power commission has created a near panic in some local labor markets, it was said.

Dr. Burns, former instructor in labor economics and industrial relations at the University of Chicago, said the WLB is undergoing decentralization and that the move toward local control of local problems is gaining headway.

U. S. War Plants Exempt.

The principal problem of WLB, as explained during the closed conferences, arises from the fact that there is no ceiling on wages in government built war plants, even tho they are operated by private firms. About 90 such plants have been constructed by the ordnance departments and now employ an estimated 2,500,000 workers at wages higher than prevail in other industries.

The operating firms, doing business with the government on a cost-plus basis, are inclined to be generous in wages, it was said, and the influence of the plants radiates for 200 miles around them, affecting the labor market. Employers in private industries in the area complain they can't keep their workers against this competition.

The week-end conferences dealt directly with the laundry workers, many of whom in this area are reported to have been attracted to war industries.

Laundries Are Hard Hit.

William J. Donovan, international president of the laundry workers' union, said an agreement was reached here last month to give the workers a raise of 3 to 6 cents an hour. He has been telephoning and telegraphing WLB in Washington daily since, he said, in an effort to get the agreement approved. There have been several unauthorized strikes, walkouts, and sitdowns, he reported.

It was reported that some loop hotels have been inconvenienced by loss of laundry help and that some hospitals are concerned over a possible shortage of clean linen and nurses' and doctors' uniforms.

Donovan said that the closing of one laundry created a military problem. The occupants of two troop trains had sent their washing to the plant and were unable to get it out.

PRICE CONTROLS FACE NEW PERIL, ECONOMISTS SAY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—Some government economists expressed belief today that the nation faces a new crisis in the fight to hold down the cost of living.

These experts, whose views might not necessarily jibe with those of superiors, make these points:

1. Labor is actively demanding higher wages.
2. Farm groups are organizing to demand higher prices for farm products.
3. Enforcement of price controls has not been fully effective.
4. Tax and savings legislation is being delayed.

Want President to Act.

Those who cite these claims want a general tightening up of administration policy, preferably by intervention of President Roosevelt who, they said, has been too busy with military and international affairs to give much time to the problem.

Labor's demands were voiced recently when CIO President Phillip Murray and AFL President William Green said at the White House that members of their unions needed higher wages because the cost of living was rising. About the same time John L. Lewis demanded $2 a day increases for miners and the railroad unions have demanded more pay. Smaller labor groups have petitioned for increases from the war labor board and in some cases obtained them.

Dispute What Is Parity.

As for the farmers, after a bitter fight in congress the office of price administration got authority to put ceilings on farm prices at parity levels. There then arose a controversy about the meaning of parity. The administration insists that the amount of government benefit payments must be included in figuring parity. Farm groups say that should not be done and moreover there should be something extra for the unusually high cost of farm labor. Questions over subsidy also are involved.

Gloomy reports from the farm belts over prospects for meeting 1943 food production goals brought a renewal today of congressional pleas for higher agricultural prices to enable producers to compete for man power.

Warns of Dire Food Shortage.

Sen. George D. Aiken [R., Vt.] advocated continuous meetings by an agricultural subcommittee to create sentiment among city consumers behind a program "to raise prices, provide machinery and direct necessary labor to the farms."

"Unless there is immediate concentration on food production, food preservation and food utilization, people in high government places will realize what every farmer sees now—that dire food shortages will imperil the prosecution of the war before the end of the year," Aiken asserted.

Aiken and Sen. Guy M. Gillette [D., Iowa] report hundreds of letters from farmers urging higher price ceilings and increased priorities on farm machinery.

PLAN TRANSFERS OF IDLE STEEL TO WAR INDUSTRIES

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 7 (AP).—Plans for moving big inventories of excess and idle steel to where they are needed in war production were worked out at conferences here the last six days.

The sessions were attended by officials of the war production board and the national steel recovery program, as well as WPB field representatives from many eastern states.

A government spokesman said a survey of 50,000 manufacturers showed large tonnages of steel—stainless, bar, tool, structural, and other kinds—lying idle. These are now being made available to plants producing essential war goods.

CIO Union Wins Election at Pressed Steel Car Co.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 (AP).—The national labor relations board has certified the international union, United Automobile, Aircraft and Agricultural Implement Workers of America [CIO] as exclusive collective bargaining agent for employés of the Pressed Steel Car company, Hegewish, Ill. The election was Jan. 20.

PERSONAL INCOME TAX—15.

[Copyright: 1943: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The simplest way to define a capital asset under income tax regulations, is to tell what it is not. A capital asset is property held by a taxpayer, with the exception of: 1. Inventories or property held for sale in the ordinary course of the taxpayer's trade or business; 2. Depreciable business property; 3. Land used in trade or business; 4. Short term noninterest bearing government securities issued on or after March 1, 1941, on a discount basis.

For most taxpayers, capital assets would include a residence, furniture, jewelry, and an automobile. If gains are realized from the sale of such assets, they are treated as capital gains. However, since these are personal possessions, no deductions are allowed for sales at a loss.

Another important exception is made with respect to gains on sales of land and depreciable business property. By definition, these properties are not capital assets, but if the taxpayer realizes a gain from the sale or involuntary conversion of such property used in his trade or business and held for more than six months, the gain is treated as a capital gain, and only 50 per cent of it is taken into account for income tax purposes. If there is a net loss on the sale of these items, even tho held for more than six months, it is treated as an ordinary loss and is fully deductible.

The full amount of the net gain or loss from the sale or exchange of other property classified as "other than capital assets" must be taken into account.

The taxpayer will observe that gains or losses from the sale or exchange of capital assets are reported separately from gains or losses on noncapital assets. Net capital gain or loss is reported as item 8a on form 1040, and must be supported by information entered in schedule F. The net gain or loss from other property is reported as item 8b, with supporting data in schedule G.

To determine the net gain or loss from the sale of property the taxpayer must first determine the "basis" of the property. In many cases the basis will be simply the cost of the property to the taxpayer, but a different condition may arise in the case of gifts, inheritances and such. Not only may the basis differ because of the manner in which the property was acquired, but also because of the date of acquisition. Where depreciable property is involved, the accrued depreciation must be taken into account. A series of technical rules have been set up concerning the "basis" and must be complied with by the taxpayer.

[Tuesday's article will be on the earned income credit.]

People and Events

R. G. Carlson, former general agent of the Lackawanna railroad in Chicago, has been appointed to that office with the Green Bay & Western railroad in New York, L. C. Jorgensen, Green Bay traffic manager, announced yesterday.

Nathan Cummings, president of the Sprague Warner-Kenny corporation, will be the principal speaker at a luncheon of the Chicago Association of Manufacturers' Representatives today in the Hotel Sherman.

SEC's Salary Publicity Rule Held Needless

The securities and exchange commission, without authority to regulate executive salaries, is seeking to regulate them indirectly thru publicity requirements contained in new proxy rules put into effect Dec. 18, a New York industrial group charged yesterday. The accusation was made by the Commerce and Industry association, which said in a statement that the new rules impose needless additional burdens on business.

Details which the new regulations require corporations to include in proxy statements regarding remuneration paid to executives are excessive, the association said.

Asks Less in Registrations.

"Significantly," it said, "the exhaustive information required concerning officers and directors exceeds in some respects that required by the commission in applications for registration under the securities exchange act and even that required in an offering prospectus under the securities act for the sale of securities."

The statement, sent to members of the house and senate, where bills to limit the powers of the SEC are pending, called for "a comprehensive revision of the proxy rules to prevent the SEC from exceeding the authority conferred upon it by law and imposing unwarranted new burdens on industry."

Criticizes Publishing Rule.

One of the new rules to which the association objected requires a corporation to include in the proxy statement any 100 word statement proposed by a stockholder. There is no limit on the number of such statements that a company can be required to include, and for that reason, the association said, the statements might become so bulky that stockholders would be confused and the proxy statement would lose its value.

Also, the association said, statements offered by stockholders might be misleading, untrue, libelous or abusive.

M'KESSON PROFIT OFF, ALTHO SALES RISE 17 PER CENT

McKesson & Robbins, Inc., yesterday reported net income for the six months ended Dec. 31, first half of its fiscal year, was $2,172,099, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $1.20 a common share. The figures were before a post-war tax credit of $395,285.

For the corresponding six months of 1941 the drug company showed a consolidated net profit of $3,957,544 after a million dollar provision for contingencies.

W. J. Murray Jr., president, said net sales for the recent six months were $120,479,456, an increase of 17.6 per cent over the 1941 period.

OPA RULE TELLS MAKER HOW HE CAN ADVERTISE

Use of Price Risky in Dealer Lists.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 7 [Special].—Two rules which must be followed by manufacturers who state the retail price of their own products in advertisments were announced today by the office of price administration.

The rules, it said, were necessary because retail prices given in advertisments of national or regional distributors cannot affect the ceiling prices of retail outlets.

Dealer Lists Affected.

1. When a national producer mentions the retail price of his product in newspaper, magazine and radio advertisments he need not include a statement that the price mentioned cannot be charged by retailers whose individual ceilings are lower unless the advertisment lists the names of retailers selling the product.

In case the names of the retailers are listed in an advertisment giving the retail price, the producer sponsoring the advertisment also is responsible if a retailer exceeds his own maximum price in selling at the advertised price, unless the advertisment itself contains a statement that the mentioned price cannot be charged by any named outlet whose ceiling is below the mentioned price.

Must Warn User of Copy.

2. When a producer sends a retailer "copy" or "mats" which mention the retail price to be used in advertising the producer's products for sale in the retailer's store, the producer should notify the retailer that he can use the material only if the mentioned price does not exceed the retailer's ceiling.

Only if the manufacturer gives this notice to the retailer does he free himself of any responsibility in case the retailer violates his own ceiling by selling at the mentioned price.

WAR, PRIORITIES SLASH MEXICAN OIL PRODUCTION

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 7 [Special].—Mexico's oil industry has been hard hit by the war, which has greatly curtailed exports, Efrain Buenrostro, general manager of Pemex [Petroleos Mexicanos], the government-controled company now holding the oil monopoly in this country, said today. Because of the lack of exports, he said, production of crude oil in 1942 fell from an average of 112,566 to 92,148 American barrels a day.

"Even before Mexico's entry into the war ways and means had been considered to improve the production capacity of the oil fields in operation," Buenrostro said. "The restrictions placed in the United States on materials and equipment have made it impossible to carry out the program."

Asked what he thought the United States should supply to make the oil industry more efficient, Buenrostro said that Mexico needed "authorization to purchase enough material with which to improve the refineries already obsolete in March, 1938, and to maintain efficiently our drilling rigs, pipeline systems, refining plants as well as distributing and sales organizations."

WORKERS' IDEAS SAVE TIME AND MATERIALS AT GENERAL ELECTRIC

Schenectady, N. Y., Feb. 7 [Special].—War workers production ideas saved 1,250,000 man hours, more than 500 tons of steel, and large amounts of aluminum, copper, tin, chromium, and other essential metals in General Electric company plants during 1942, the company announced today. The company said a record $158,943 was paid last year for 16,204 suggestions adopted of 53,945 submitted. Two awards were $1,200 each.

Since the suggestion system was started by General Electric about 25 years ago, the company has paid more than $1,300,000 to employés for ideas to improve production. Executives, research men, and foremen are not eligible for the awards.

NEW FIRM TO USE BRITISH PATENTS ON TELEVISION

New York, Feb. 7 (AP).—Formation of the Scophony Corporation of America, which will control for the western hemisphere certain television patent rights owned by British interests, was announced today.

Associated in the company are General Precision Equipment corporation, Television Productions, Inc., a subsidiary of Paramount Pictures, and Scophony, Ltd., of London.

Arthur Levey, president of the American company, said the patents were the result of about 14 years of research in England.

1 does it—in Philadelphia

In newspapers, 1 does it in Philadelphia.

The Evening Bulletin,* of the city of homes, carries more general advertising than any other evening or morning or Sunday newspaper in the country and more local advertising than any other Philadelphia newspaper.

And—

More and more advertisers are pursuing this policy:
A thorough advertising job in The Bulletin is the primary requisite to a thorough job in the important Philadelphia market.

*Circulation over 600,000—largest evening newspaper in America.

In Philadelphia—nearly everybody reads The Bulletin

NON-ESSENTIAL?
War Man Power
Commission Says
GET WAR JOB
OR FIGHT

A shift to an essential war job now is your patriotic duty. Think men U. E. I. can train you for in as little as FIVE WEEKS and prepare you for an essential WAR occupation. Many white collar workers and women have made good in Welding—why can't you? War Manpower Director Paul V. McNutt said: "38-year top limit might be raised at any time."

Get training daily, any time from 6:30 A.M. to midnight or Saturdays and Sundays. Let's back up the boys at the front by helping to produce tanks, ships, planes and other vital war equipment.

Arrangements to pay cost of training can be made over period of 12 mos. out of earngs.

You workers in non-essential fields, look into this at once—April 1st is the deadline. Prepare NOW for that WAR JOB. Write, ph. or come in today, DON'T DELAY. Classes filling rapidly.

MEN'S GREAT OPPORTUNITY

During 1942 I successfully advised hundreds of men and women how and what to do to qualify for high paid jobs in war production work. I am happy to say there are many who have taken my advice and are now drawing big pay in defense plants.

In order to give more men and women in the Chicago area an opportunity to know their qualifications, where and how to apply for employment and where and how to learn the proper use of shop and hand tools, I will be at Hotel Morrison, Chicago, from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. today [Monday], and I will gladly advise all who call how to secure training for big-pay war production jobs.

All should share in victory as high paid workers. If you are qualified, it is your duty to apply at the nearest war plant. If not, stop holding your hands and complaining that you don't know how or what to do. You can have advice without obligation—a key to higher wages, security, and future career by calling or writing.
